Boys, girls must play together: U.S.

by WANDALYN RICE

Local school officials will have to figure out how to put boys and girls into the same physical education classes because of rules issued Tuesday by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

The rules require that physical-education classes in elementary and high schools be integrated by sex except for contact sports such as basketball and wrestling. Schools have the option to separate boys and girls during those activities, but are not required to.

The rules also state that boys and girls be given equal access to competitive athletic teams, but allow a school to offer separate competitive teams for boys and girls.

The regulations also require other classes, including industrial education and home economics, to be integrated by sex. The rules say sex-education classes may be held separately for boys and girls.

THE RULES WERE issued by HEW Sec. Casper W. Weinberger under a 1972 federal law that prohibits discrimination in education on the basis of sex.

Unless Congress intervenes to void some rules, schools will be required to begin planning to comply with the rules by July 21. High schools and colleges will have three years to comply, while elementary schools will be expected to comply in one year.

The rules apply to all elementary, high schools and colleges that receive federal funds — almost all the schools in the United States.

The rules do not contain any prohibition against textbooks or other curriculum materials which contain sex-role stereotypes. Exempted from the requirement to integrate by sex are social fraternities and sororities, housing, lockerrooms and restrooms.

In a press conference Tuesday, Weinberger said, "Equal educational opportunity for women is the law of the land and it will be enforced." He said the rules are "far reaching' and that it was impossible to draft rules

Village must decide use of U.S. funds

Elk Grove Village officials will decide how the village will spend $374,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds at a special session at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Among the options open to the board are a new fire engine for the fire station planned west of Ill. Rte. 53, a sidewalk project on Elk Grove Boulevard and a pedestrian bridge over Salt Creek at Clearmont Drive.

Finance Director George Coney requested the special session during Tuesday's village board meeting and said he must submit proposed uses for the funds to federal officials within two weeks.

Trustee Ronald Chernick put village departments on notice that if they were interested in securing a commitment for federal funding for a special project "they should come to the meeting and sell their case."

In other action, village officials agreed to purchase $12,000 in materials for street repairs and routine maintenance and awarded the contract to Allied Asphalt Paving Co., Hillside, for supplies to patch several streets.

A proposed $215,000 motor fuel tax street-repair program expected to be approved was not discussed but is expected to be acted upon Tuesday.

Pres. Zettek accepted the resignation of plan commission member Joe Cimino. Zettek said Cimino, an architect, has formed his own architectural firm and resigned his post because he believed it might lead to a possible conflict of interest.

Zettek said he personally disagreed with Cimino's reason for the resignation, but accepted it with regret.

In other action:

- Trustee Nanci Vanderweel has requested the police department conduct a traffic study at Landmeier Road and Wildwood Streets. She said heavy pedestrian and bike traffic make it a dangerous intersection.
- Trustee Edward Kenna has asked the village staff to contact Centex Homes Corp. officials concerning their maintenance of a detention pond on Nerge Road near Devon Avenue. Kenna cited it as a dangerous situation for youngsters.
- A 7:30 p.m. June 18 meeting of the board and water consultants has been scheduled by Trustee Ronald Chernick to discuss a recent water supply and improvement study prepared by consultants Greeley and Hanson.
- Scheduled on 8 p.m. Thursday meeting of the Community Service Board to discuss programs for the coming year and staff. The meeting will be held in the multi-purpose room of the municipal Building, 901 Wellington ave.

Zettek accepted a Chamber of Industry and Commerce Assn.'s request to officiate at opening ceremonies at the association's June 17-19 trade fair at Elk Grove High School.

Grade school track meet set Saturday

The annual Elk Grove Park District and Knights of Columbus track meet for elementary school youngsters will be Saturday at Elk Grove High Schooi.

Events are scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., with teams from each of the schools in the village competing. Admission is free.

All participants will receive ribbons. Medals will be awarded to individuals and teams who place first, second and third in each event. The school compiling the most points will receive a trophy.

MARGO FORD, 13, walks the family dog in front of Prairie Park where the Arlington Heights Park District installed a dozen wood posts to prevent cars and trucks on Douglas Street from cutting through the park. Margo's 1-year-old brother, Patrick, is deaf and is endangered by the cars when he plays in the park.

Stops traffic through park

Posts installed to protect deaf boy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A dozen wood posts were installed Tuesday across Douglas Street at the entrance to Prairie Park in Elk Grove Township to protect a 10-year-old deaf boy who often plays there.

The boy, Patrick Ford, plays near the park entrance where cars and trucks cut through the park to other streets.

Patrick's home, 1531 S. Douglas St., is adjacent to the park and his parents say his safety is even in jeopardy while he plays in his backyard.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District and Elk Grove Township planned for several months to install an iron gate at the park entrance. The township purchased pipe for the gate and the park district built it and dug the post holes for its installation several weeks ago.

However, an objection from a Heights Park District and Elk Grove Township planned for seneral months to install and iron gate at the park entrane. The township purchased pipe for the gae and the park district built it and dug the post holes for its installation several weeks ago.

However, an objection from a neighbor on the opposite side of Douglas Street has prevented the gate from being placed there and cars have continued to cut through to the park.

Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks, said he decided to install wooden posts at the location despite the continuing controversy over the gate. The three-foot posts were installed Tuesday to prevent passage by any vehicles.

"We put the posts on the park district's property to prevent any problems over that since we couldn't put up the gate where we wanted to at the end of the township street," Capulli said.

"If they finally decide they want to put the gate up instead, we'll do that, but this at least takes care of the problem for now," he said.

THE TOWNSHIP had attempted to provide safety for Patrick by placing a cable across the deadend street and posting "Deaf Child" signs throughout the neighborhood, all of which were stolen.

Nancy Ford, Patrick's mother, said that the family bought a home adjacent to a park so that the boy could play outside without having to cross streets.

The family requested in March that the township and the park district prevent vehicles from using the Ford's access route into the park.

"Then yesterday, like magic, some men appeared and put in those posts," Mrs. Ford said.

"There is no way that anyone can pull out or tear down those posts, so I think they will do the job. They are the most beautiful, ugly old posts I ever saw," she said.

HOWEVER, THE posts have posed a new problem for the Fords and their neighbors across the street.

Now, persons who want to tend their garden plots in a special park district program at the park must walk across homeowners' front lawns to get into the park.

Also, a few trucks and cars were seen Tuesday driving across their lawns to cut through to get into the park.

"At least we can put up our own fence and block these cars from coming through on our own property now. But before, we couldn't do anything about them cutting through on the park district property," Mrs. Ford said.

"Now, at least, my mind is at ease," she said.

I paid Fulle $32,000 bribes: Origer

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Developer Thomas Origer testified in U.S. District Court Tuesday that he paid more than $32,000 in bribes to County Comr. Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines to get zoning approval for seven Northwest suburban apartment developments.

Origer, on the witness stand in the extortion trial of Comr. Charles S. Bonk of Chicago, told of giving twice as much — a total of $65,000 — to attorney Robert Haskins for similar payoffs to Democratic commissioners on the County Board.

But Origer said he did not remember Haskins ever telling him that the money went specifically to Bonk, a Democratic commissioner charged with 17 counts of extortion and income-tax evasion in the case.

Fulle, the county Republican chairman, has been charged with extortion and income-tax evasion in a separate case to go to trial in September.

MELVIN ISENSTEIN, owner of land that became the Old Madrid and Randville Estates projects in Palatine, told the federal jury and Judge Hubert L. Will he also gave cash to Haskins for those two rezoning approvals. Isenstein said Haskins telephoned Bonk and former Republican commissioner Charles F. Chaplin while he was in Haskins' office after delivering the cash for the bribery.

Isenstein said he also paid $10,000 in cash to another lawyer to get Fulle to drop his objections to the Randville Estates rezoning.

Origer, who lives at 274 Goebbert Circle, Palatine, is the former owner of the Chicago Fire professional football team.

HIS TESTIMONY, which took most of Tuesday afternoon, substantially supported that given Monday by Haskins, who told of paying off Bonk with cash from Origer and other developers.

Origer testified about one $5,000 payoff Haskins had said he was unable to recall and he also said the payoff on the 96-acre Forest View Drive project in Northfield Township was $15,000 rather than the $20,000 Haskins had testified.

Origer recalled payoffs to Haskins "for the Democrats" and to Fulle on

The Nelsons of the 1950s.

The kind of guy you'd like for a neighbor

Ozzie, 'Mr. Suburbanite,' dies at 69

by KAREN BLECHA

Ozzie Nelson was TV's first real suburbanite.

He could have lived in any of the Northwest suburbs and called it home. He puttered in the backyard with son Ricky by his side, made frequent trips to the hardware store and wore cardigan sweaters.

The kids called him "Pop;" Harriet called him "Dear." Nobody knew what Ozzie did for a living but whatever he did, it was good. Ozzie had too much virtue to be unemployed.

OZZIE NELSON, 69, died Tuesday of cancer and a bit of the middle-50s myth he created died with him. For 22 years he, his wife Harriet and sons Ricky and David were the ideal American family on radio, television and in many people's minds. Today's young couples grew up with the Nelsons; they were convinced they knew how to live.

Maybe it was the big white house viewers wanted — spacious living room, strictly suburban style with welcoming fireplace and polished staircase. Open the front door and Nelsons would tumble out to form a line by a neatly trimmed front hedge as the announcer introduced "America's favorite family."

Or maybe it was the life, easy and uncomplicated. The malt shop where boys and girls and Ozzie met after school; the corner drugstore; Thorny the friendly neighbor who couldn't stand Ozzie's home movies, backfence gossip and community dances with the family taking turns serving the punch.

Harriet was the perfect suburban housewife in her shirtwaists and aprons. Her cakes came out perfect; her dinners so delicious women viewers wrote for her recipes. She was the first television wife to share a double bed with her husband. And she always knew how to settle arguments between her sons.

AND THE BOYS. Crewcuts and letter sweaters. They were mischievous, but not bad. They and their friend Wally got into trouble but got themselves out. They grew up before 30 million viewers and the TV audience could have been their favorite aunt. They all knew Ricky was outgoing and David was kind of shy.

It is hard to single out an episode of "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" because they all were the same. Everything ended happily. Problems were not problems, only misunderstandings. Ozzie, who sometimes stammered, would smile and say, "You see, there was nothing at all to worry about."

OZZIE NELSON wanted it that way. He wrote the series based on his life as a boy in New Jersey where by age 13 he became the nation's youngest Eagle Scout. He distinguished himself as a scholar, musician and football player at Rutgers. He received his law degree from Rutgers in 1930.

He became a bandleader and played the saxophone in the 1930s, marrying vocalist Harriet Hilliard in 1932. They traveled across the country during the Big Band era, starred in their own radio show in 1944 and later brought their family to television.

Eight months ago Nelson discovered he had cancer of the liver. When he died at their San Fernando Valley home early Tuesday morning, Harriet, David and Rick were at his bedside. It was the way it would have been on TV.

Area man believed to be 'enema bandit'

A Palatine Township man, suspected of being the elusive 'enema bandit,' was a skillful burglar who staked out apartments to find his victims, police said Tuesday. Michael Hubert Kenyon, 30, was charged by Champaign and Urbana police with two armed robberies May 3 in which he administered enemas to two college coeds in their apartments near the University of Illinois campus, police reported. Kenyon, a state revenue auditor, is suspected of having robbed and given enemas to women at the campus for the past 11 years. Authorities suspect a link between the Champaign-Urbana attacks, which started in 1964, and similar incidents in Manhattan, Kan.; Los Angeles and Norman, Okla., all major college towns. Champaign police said there may have been as many as 40 such enema-type robberies in the four cities. Police said the enema bandit never sexually assaulted his victims and said he did not want to harm them. Kenyon was being held in DuPage County Jail in lieu of $100,000 in bonds pending a court appearance June 10. Total bond on the Champaign-Urbana charges was set at $200,000. Kenyon is scheduled to appear Friday in the Palatine branch of Circuit Court.

Marine's body found

The body of a 24-year-old Marine who drowned in Beck Lake near Des Plaines about two weeks ago was found floating near shore Tuesday. Edwin Moll, chief investigator for the Forest Preserve District, said the body of Marine Sgt. William Kottke, who had been stationed at Glenview Naval Air Station, was pulled from the water by divers. The body was spotted by a citizen about 9:30 p.m. Kottke was a native of Elma, Wash.

'Stop free phone policy'

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Tuesday the city should discontinue its policy of paying the home telephone bills of more than 200 employes and elected officials. Behrel said he will suggest to the city council that the city cease picking up the tab on private phones, which cost about $22,000 a year. Behrel said a buzzer system to contact police and firemen may be necessary, but said "I see no reason to continue to give free phones to the aldermen."

BGA hits reappointment of Bonk as commissioner

CHICAGO (UPI) — The director of the Better Government Assn. criticized Tuesday the reappointment of County Comr. Charles S. Bonk, who is on trial for an alleged payoff scheme, to the County Board's zoning committee.

Bonk, along with Comr. Floyd T. Fulle, has been indicted on charges of extortion and tax fraud. County Board Pres. George W. Dunne reappointed Bonk to the zoning seat Monday.

J. Terrence Brunner, executive director of the BGA, accused some Republicans on the board of striking a deal with Democrats in return for Bonk's reappointment. Fulle is chairman of the County Republican Central Committee and Bonk is a Democrat.

Brunner said reappointing Bonk to chair the zoning committee was "an unparalleled act of political cynism." He said it "amounts to assigning Dracula to guard the blood bank."

Brunner called on Dunne to "open his eyes" and investigate other alleged improprieties which might have occurred in zoning decisions. Brunner said Bonk and Fulle "should step down immediately and stay out of public office until their cases have been tried in federal court."

projects built between 1964 and 1972, including the Bay Colony Condominiums and Shorewood Village in Maine Township.

UNDER CROSS-examination by Bonk's attorney, Thomas Foran, Origer said Haskins refused to deal with Fulle when Fulle delayed zoning on one 7½-acre project.

Origer said he saw Fulle in Fulle's Rosemont office and that Fulle told him he "wanted to be friends."

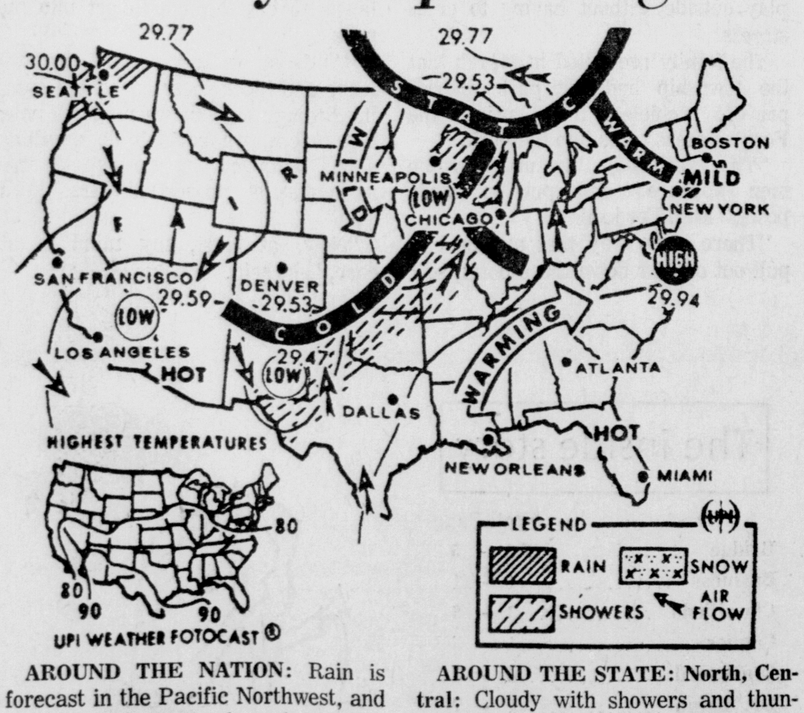

Fulle explained to him that with nearby municipalities objecting to rezonings, the votes of at least two Republican commissioners were needed to get the three-fourths majority to rezone the land.

"He told you any county commissioner could have a rezoning vote deferred forever and by using this procedure he could force fellows like you to deal with the Republicans as well as the Democrats?" Foran asked.

"Yes," Origer said.

ORIGER TESTIFIED Fulle said the five Republicans then on the board needed only half as much money as the 10 Democrats. Fulle settled for a $2,500 payoff on the 7½-acre project after Origer told him he had given Haskins $5,000 for the Democrats, Origer said.

Israeli cutback in Sinai seen as risk for peace

MITLA PASS, Israeli-occupied Sinai (UPI) — Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Tuesday the thinning out of Israeli troop and weapons in the Sinai has begun and will be completed early Wednesday, a day before Egypt reopens the Suez Canal.

"Welcome to a relaxed Sinai," he told newsmen on a tour of military bases in the Israeli-occupied peninsula.

"I hope this will be a real contribution for additional relaxation in this troubled area . . . and lead to opening roads that may lead to peace."

Peres said that by Wednesday morning Israel will have pulled back half its 7,000 troops, 15 of its 30 tanks and all artillery pieces and missiles from the area adjoining the U.N. buffer zone that separates Israeli and Egyptian troops. The canal is due to open Thursday.

The missile-free zone will go back as far as 32 miles from the U.N. line, he said.

Peres said Israel's unilateral gesture was made without expecting anything in return — "except maybe a better atmosphere for future negotiations."

Speaking at an observation post high atop a rocky bluff at the western edge of the Israeli forward zone, Peres said Israel was taking a chance in withdrawing its forces.

"By and large the present deployment of forces is considered the best under the circumstances," he said. "Once we withdraw part of the forces we change the situation and that is a risk."

He said Israel considered Egypt's initial reaction favorable, citing President Anwar Sadat's statement of approval and the lack of opposition in the Egyptian press.

Syria agreed to open the sluices on the Euphrates River dam, increasing the flow of water to Iraqi farmlands and extinguishing a burning dispute between the two nations. The Syrian Arab News Agency said the decision was the result of Saudi Arabian mediation in the quarrel over Iraqi allegations that the lives of three million farmers were endangered through a water shortage.

Shooting broke out in Beirut and armed gunmen manned roadblocks in a renewed outburst of Lebanese civil strife. At least four people were wounded in scattered incidents. Security forces moved in to bring the situation under control, a communique said.

ISRAELI TANKS withdrew to new positions in the Sinai Desert Tuesday. Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the thinning operation of troops, tanks and rockets will be completed Wednesday. The gesture coincides with the reopening of the Suez Canal.

Scott reaffirms he won't run at $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner

by BOB LAHEY

Despite his announcement last weekend that he will not run for governor of Illinois, State Attorney General, William J. Scott attracted an estimated 2,000 persons to a $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner at Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel Tuesday night.

Scott referred obliquely to his decision not to seek election as governor when he told the largely bi-partisan crowd that problems facing the environment and the justice system in Illinois "can only be solved if we put aside personal feelings and ambitions and realize that we face as great a challenge as Americans faced 200 years ago."

Scott made no direct reference to his refusal to run for governor but repeated several times in his remarks, "it was a hard decision."

State Comptroller George Lindberg considered by many as a likely candidate for governor in Scott's absence, asked during his remarks at the dinner for a show of support to convince Scott to reconsider his decision. Lindberg's plea received only lukewarm applause from the audience, obviously less enthusiasm than the guest demonstrated when one Demcratic celebrity, Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, was introduced.

Howlett was one of several Democrats who graced the tribute to Scott. Also on the dias was Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan. Introduced from the audience were Democratic Chicago Aldermen Vito Marzullo and Edmund Burke.

Howlett, as always the attention-getting speaker, aroused an uproarious response when he told the audience: "It's unfortunate there are not more Republicans here; then this could qualify as a bi-partisan dinner."

William J. Scott

Howlett then topped himself in a reference to his own announcement recently that he will not run for governor when he turned to Scott and said, "Bill, we have deprived the people of Illinois of two chances to get one damn good governor."

Scott was introduced by former Congresswoman Margaritte Stitt Church who formerly represented the North and Northwest suburbs, who said bluntly that she was "broken hearted" by Scott's decision that he would not run for governor.

The talk among Republican luminaries who attended the dinner centered upon who might replace Scott as the front-runner for the Republican nomination to run against the Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker. Despite the obvious disappointment that the party had lost the man who was considered to be its prime hope for defeating Walker, however, the banquet hall was filled to near capacity. According to Sen. Charles H. Percy, rather than loosing attendance, Scott's organization sold more than 300 additional tickets following his withdrawal from the governor's race last weekend.

A hotel official said the banquet hall held at least 2,000 dinner guests. At $125 a plate that would amount to about $250,000.

Earlier estimates were that Scott had nearly $200,000 remaining in his campaign chest from the 1972 election, meaning that he has close to half a million dollars already accumulated for an easy run at reelection as attorney general.

Charge Germany plants U.S. nuclear threat

West Germany is planting a nuclear threat "right under the belly of the United States" by agreeing to provide atomic technology to Brazil, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said Tuesday. "Are we going to have another Cuba?" Pastore shouted, during Senate debate on a $25 billion arms procurement bill. Pastore's concern was echoed by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn.

N.Y. doctors treat emergency cases only

Hundreds of doctors in the New York City area turned away all but emergency cases Tuesday to protest the soaring cost of medical malpractice insurance. Physicians, angered over doubled and tripled premium costs, as well as what they consider inadequte efforts by state legislators to give them financial relief, were treating only critical patients in many New York hospitals.

Antiwar dissidents' dossiers may still exist

Dossiers which the Army compiled on antiwar dissidents, and the Pentagon promised to destroy, may still exist in intelligence agencies which exchanged information with the Defense Department, Congress was told Tuesday. Deputy Defense Secretary David O. Cooke told a House Government Operations subcommittee the original Army files compiled in the late 1960s have either been destroyed or await orders for destruction. But Cooke said he was "relatively certain . . . information on civilian disturbances was exchanged with other government agencies."

Nuclear tests sway lights in Las Vegas

A rare double-barreled underground nuclear test sent shock waves rolling across southern Nevada Tuesday, swaying light fixtures and gently shaking the ground 100 miles away in Las Vegas. The first explosion was touched off 2,400 feet deep in a vertical shaft at 9:20 a.m. CDT. The second blast came exactly 20 minutes later in another vertical shaft several miles away. "The weapons-related tests were successful," a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration said.

Hope for House action next week

Panel OKs plan to hike gas tax 23 cents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stung by President Ford's charges of idleness, the Rules Committee Tuesday approved for House action an energy tax bill that could raise gasoline taxes by 23 cents.

House Democratic leaders hoped the bill can be discussed and voted on next week. At that, it would be three weeks later than the last period of grace Ford had offered before going ahead with his own tariff tax plan.

The Rules Committee voted 10 to 6 to let the bill be amended in any way that does not add major provisions. The committee specifically instructed the House to allow consideration of an alternative to the section that would tax cars with high gasoline consumption.

The alternative, drawn up by the House Commerce Committee, would set mileage standards at 18.5 miles a gallon in 1978 models and would tax manufacturers whose cars fell short.

The bill would raise gasoliine taxes by three cents a gallon next Jan. 1, and by an additional 20 cents in early 1977 if gasoline consumption is not reduced.

Meanwhile, a string of votes on vetoes is coming up in Congress that will help decide who's in charge of shaping economic solutions — a conservative White House or an activist Congress.

The first vote, in the House Wednesday, is on overriding President Ford's veto last Thursday of a $5.3 billion jobs bill, a pet project of Speaker Carl Albert.

Democrats concede that the vote is crucial. If they can't win that one, Ford will know he worried in vain last fall while barnstorming the country against a "veto-proof" Congress.

The jobs bill provides funds to put 900,000 people to work by accelerating spending for public works construction and by creating public services. Ford says recovery would be well under way by the time the money could be spent.

Down the road are expected veto fights over strip mining regulation, oil import fees, middle-income housing, energy conservation and anti-recession spending on local public works projects.

Democrats dominate this Congress, but they still need Republican defections to produce the two-thirds majorities required to write their programs into law over Ford's vetoes.

Since becoming President, Ford has vetoed 32 bills. Congress overrode him four times.

In this session, he has vetoed five bills. Democrats have tried to override only one so far, the big bill to put a floor under farm income.

U.S. slow on anti-smoking: doctors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors who blew the whistle on cigarettes 11 years ago said Tuesday Uncle Sam is dragging his heels on the anti-smoking front.

Criticism came from Dr. Luther L. Terry. architect of the 1964 landmark Surgeon General's Report on Smoking, and his committee.

As the Third World Conference on Smoking and Health moved into its second day, the doctors said the first report should have been followed by a second one — "What To Do About It."

The 1964 report linked habitual cigarette smoking with increased risks of disability and premature death from cancer and heart disorders.

The "Second Report," said Dr. Jacob Furth, should have come at once. "But the politicians and sociologists did little and as a result there still are great problems ahead," he said. Dr. Walter J. Burdette recommended that Congress enact legislation banning smoking in enclosed public places.

Through taxes on cigarettes and from other revenues Dr. Burdette said the government should also greatly increase its education program — "giving people the facts" so they can make intelligent decisions about smoking or not smoking.

Burdette said Uncle Sam soon must come to grips with his "hypocritical stance on tobacco." "Through the Department of Agriculture," he said, "programs push tobacco. The health agencies say cigarettes are a hazard to health."

Ford trip 'brought good results'

People

• President Ford ended a European trip which "brought good results . . . in the achievement of peace," and flew home Tuesday following a luncheon with Italian leaders and a meeting with Pope Paul VI. The President said he would report on the trip in a commencement address at the U.S. Military Academy Wednesday. During the President's visit in the Vatican the Pope surprised Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger when he told Ford that statesmen must not neglect military defense. "I have seen the Pope frequently before but this is the first time I have heard him express himself thusly," said Kissinger. "I was rather surprised."

• Being the mayor of New York City involves a lot more than merely coping with a multi-billion dollar budget crisis or running the world's second largest city. The following is Mayor Abe Beame's schedule for the past two months. He issued 15 proclamations, extended remarks or greetings to various groups 27 times, dropped in on 13 affairs, attended six luncheons and eight dinners, six receptions or cocktail parties, made five major speeches, received awards, handed out four awards, held six news conferences, went to Albany five times, Washington three times and Buffalo once. He also went to three ball games, three parades, one tree planting and a formal ball.

• Comedian Buddy Hackett had security guards throw the president of United Rubber Co. out of a restaurant because Hackett objected the executive's cigar, according to a battery complaint filed in Las Vegas. Nathan Kaplan, head of the rubber company, filed the complaint charging the guards jerked him from his seat in the Sahara Hotel and dragged him outside. Kaplan said Hackett yelled at him to put out the cigar. When he did not, Hackett walked over, dumped coffee on him, apologised sarcastically and called for the guards to throw him out.

• Comic Flip Wilson's dedication to sports led to the arrest of an alleged car thief. Wilson's $20,000 Porsche was stolen April 22 and found two days later stripped of valuable parts. Police have arrested Leon Wade, 25, and charged him with theft. The evidence: golf clubs, tennis rackets, 72 golf balls and 17 tennis balls found in Wade's garage — all with Flip Wilson printed on them.

• A county receptionist in Milwaukee said she will fight her boss every time he tries to make her wear "matronly" clothes. The boss, Donald Holub, said Miss Karen Delgado wears a blouse that pulls up when she reaches. He said: "As she gets up and down, the blouse pulls and she may not even be award of it . . . but I noticed it from here." Miss Delgado said she thinks her boss should keep his eyes busy elsewhere.

• A government plan to hold a national funeral for the late former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan has been accepted by Sato's family members. Officials in Tokyo said Sato's wife and sons changed their minds following Prime Minister Takeo Miki's appeals to accept the plan. The funeral will be held at a Buddhist temple in Tokoyo Friday after his body is cremated Wednesday.

• Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Tuesday he could not support Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace as either a presidential or vice presidential candidate although he is a "force to be reckoned with."

President Ford and Pope Paul shake hands

Chicago Ald. Marzullo to address Palatine Dems

A kingpin of Chicago Democratic machine politics, Ald. Vito Marzullo, 25th, will address the Democratic organization of Palatine Township Monday night.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Marzullo, 77, is the dean of the Chicago City Council. He will relate his experiences of 55 years as a member of the Democratic Party in Chicago.

Marzullo, who has been an intimate of Chicago mayors such as Anton Cermak, James Kelly and Richard J. Daley, has served on the City Council since 1953, two years before Daley became mayor. Before that, he served in the Illinois House of Representatives for 13 years.

More aid for elderly?

Programs for aid to senior citizens, instituted by many Cook County townships in recent years, could have their budgets doubled under legislation passed last week by the Illinois Senate.

Sponsored by Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, the bill would increase the limit on the amount of township funds which may be allocated for senior citizens' guidance and activities centers from $10,000 to $20,000 a year. Regner said inflated construction and service costs have made the current law insufficient.

Elk Grove Township, which is a major portion of Regner's 3rd Legislative District, was among the first to organize a senior citizens' activities program.

Med-education bill passes

With support from the Illinois State Medical Society, a bill requiring physicians to meet standards of continuing-medical education has been passed by the Illinois House and sent to the Senate.

The bill is sponsored by Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe, who said, "The explosion in medical knowledge has created valuable procedures and drugs which were unheard of only a few years ago. Yet, if the practicing physician has not continued his education he may be unaware of these new advances and thus practice outmoded medicine."

The bill would require the Illinois Medical Examining Committee to develop standards for each medical specialty.

Porter asks short sessions

An amendment to the Illinois constitution to reverse the trend toward longer sessions of the General Assembly has been introduced in the legislature by Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

Porter has proposed that the legislature convene in early December rather than January. His proposal also would make the effective date of legislation May 1 rather than July 1.

The amendment also specifies that elected officers of the executive branch would be sworn into office two days before the opening of the General Assembly.

Porter said convening the legislature in December would make it possible to begin a full working schedule in early January. In past years, the legislature often has met for only one day in January and has not gotten into full swing until around the first of March.

He added that he has discovered an error in the 1970 constitution which makes it possible that the General Assembly might be convened before other officers took office, so a lame duck governor might preside over the organization of the Senate or a retiring secretary of state over the House.

If adopted by the legislature this year, the amendment would be the subject of a statewide referendum in November 1976.

Ex-astronaut may attend park dedication June 20

Former U. S. astronaut James Lovell, one of the first Americans to orbit the moon, tentatively plans to be in Elk Grove Village later this month to dedicate Lindbergh Park where an Apollo command module will be displayed.

Elk Grove Parks Supt. Jack Claes said Tuesday Lovell has tentatively accepted the park district's invitation to preside at dedication ceremonies June 20 at the park near Adolph Link School on West Glenn Trail Road. Streets in the neighborhood around the park are named after a number of former astronauts including Lovell.

Lovell is expected to confirm the date later this week, Claes said.

James Lovell

A CREW MEMBER on the first manned flight around the moon in 1968, Lovell participated in both the Gemini and Apollo space programs. He works for Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., Newark, N. J.

The park district has been searching for an astronaut to attend the dedication ceremonies at Lindbergh Park for nearly 10 months. The ceremonies were originally scheduled last fall, but postponed when park officials were unable to arrange for an astronaut to attend.

Invitations were extended to John Glenn and Frank Borman as well as to Lovell.

GLENN, THE FIRST U. S. astronaut to orbit the earth, was elected to the U. S. Senate from Ohio last November and said the responsibilities of his office prevented him from accepting the park district's offer.

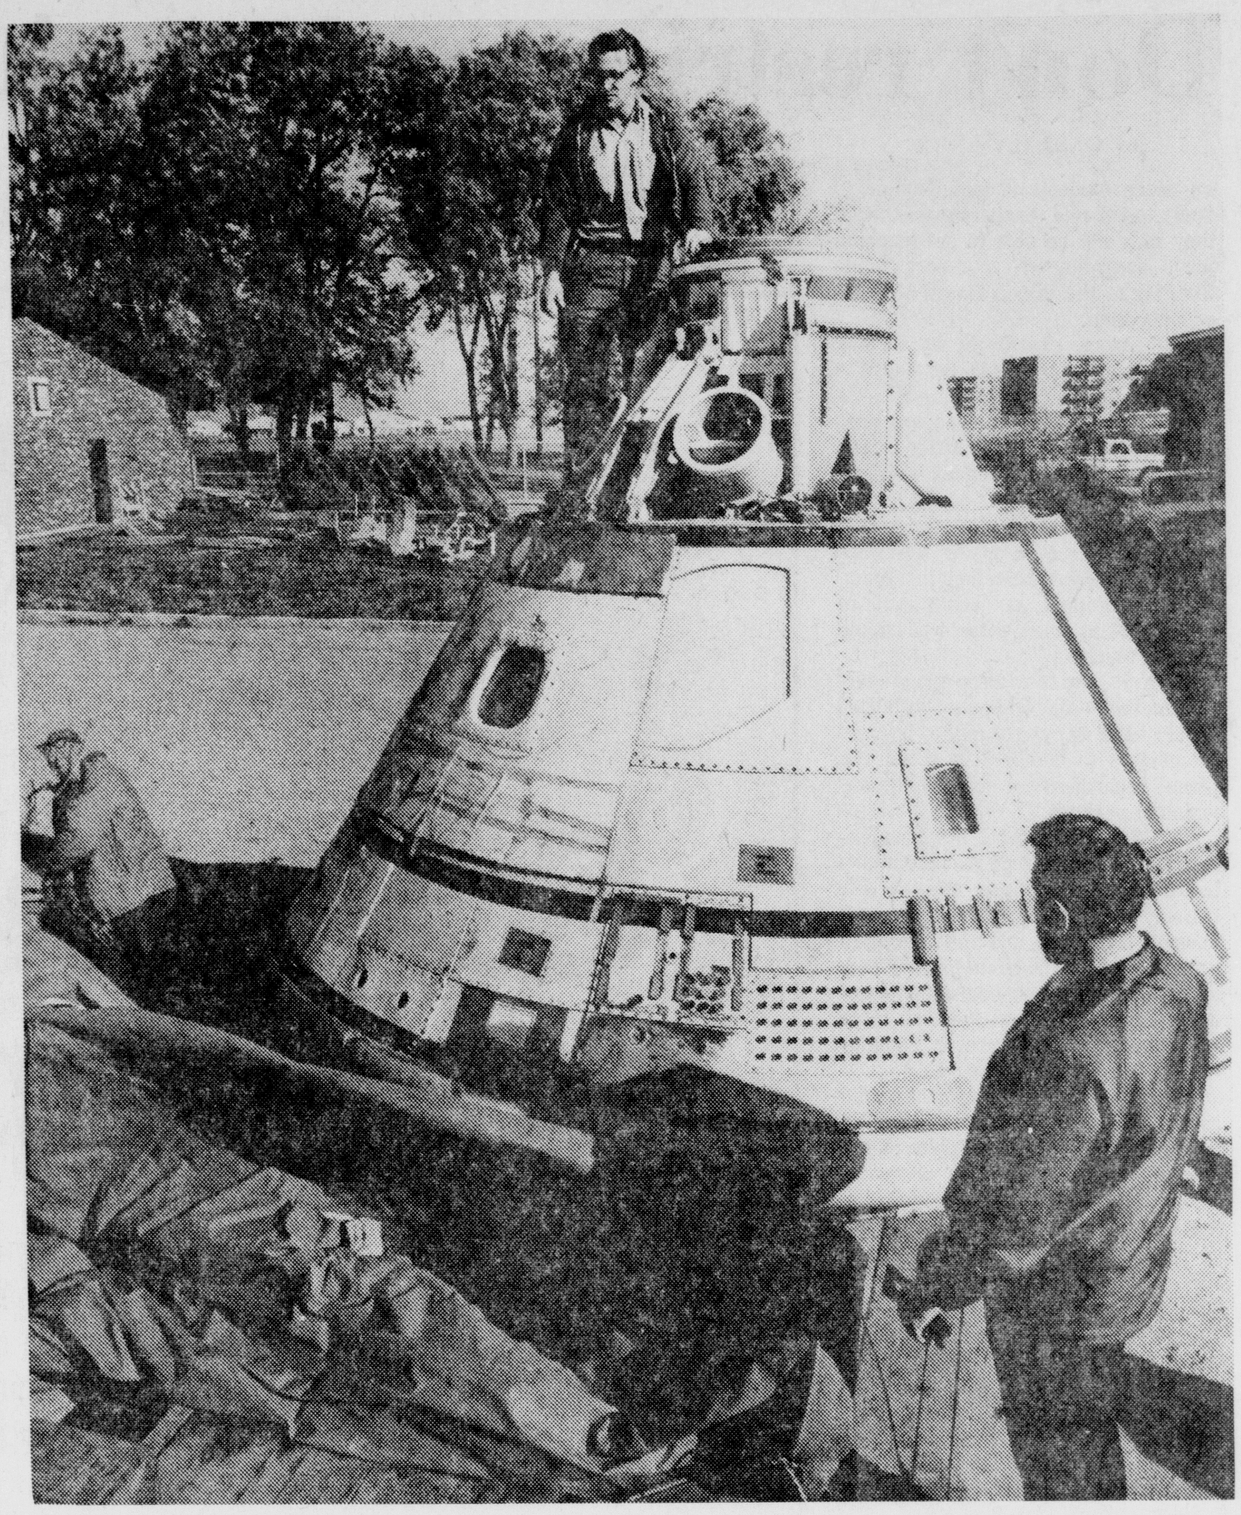

Borman was a fellow crew member of Lovell's on the moon mission and is an executive with Eastern Airlines. He also said his job would not allow him to participate in the dedication.

The space capsule, that will be the focal point of the new park, was acquired by the park district last September with the help of U. S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and officials of the Air and Space Museum in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.

The 12,000-pound, 12-foot "boiler plate" was used in space as a manned recovery vehicle in training and landing tests by the National Aeronautics and space Administration.

THE CAPSULE WAS transported to Elk Grove Village from the Johnson space Center, Houston, Tex., in October and stored behind the park district administration building.

The capsule has been "child-proofed" or permanently sealed and hardware on the outside has been removed. It will be moved to Lindbergh Park in the next two weeks where a special "landing pad" is being built.

ELK GROVE'S Apollo moonship is being prepared for movement to its final landing pad by the end of the month. Expected to dedicate the capsule's arrival in the Elk Grove Village Park District is former astronaut James Lovell. The "child proofed" capsule will be at Lindbergh Park.

Name winners in park district golf tournament

Winners were announced Wednesday in the first annual Elk Grove Park District Memorial Day Golf Tournament. .

Although the tournament played Saturday at White Pines Golf Course, Bensenville was open to all village residents, no girls or women entered.

Handicaps were not used, but winners were determined by dividing the 70 participants into flights based on their scores with a par of 70.

In the boys' division for those between 14 and 18 years old, the championship flight winner was Mike LaVanway with a score of 84. The "A" flight winner was John Hamilton, who shot 113.

In the men's division, Bill Bedmar took the honors in the championship flight by shooting even par. The "A" flight winner was Ted Timrek, with a score of 87; "B" flight winner, Kevin Chesney, shot 92; "C" flight winner, Jack Hudson shot 97; "D" flight winner Art Erke compiled a score of 104 and "E" flight winner, Bob Storinger, shot 116.

Awards also were given to golfers in competition for driving closest to the pin. Men's division winners were Robert Nickelson, first, and Richard Ludovissy, second. Boys' division winners were Bill Swanson, first, and Mark Trinske, second.

John Yohe, who racked up a score of 163, received a joke award for having the highest score in the tournament

William H. Schneck

Township wrapup

Des Plaines man appointed to town board

William H. Schneck, 340 Norman Ct., Des Plaines, was named to the Elk Grove Township Board Monday night, succeeding Walter Bartley of Mount Prospect, who resigned last month.

Schneck was endorsed by the executive committee of the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township. He is a Republican deputy committeeman and precinct captain.

Bartley, elected on a Republican slate in 1973 along with the rest of the present township board, submitted his resignation several weeks ago because he is moving to Wisconsin.

Schneck was chosen to finish Bartley's term, which expires in 1976, from among persons suggested for the position by area Republican precinct captains.

President of Bilan Litho, a Chicago printing supplies firm, Schneck and his wife, Ann, have lived in Des Plaines for about nine years.

Seal design winner

Pat Jackson, 602 W. Noyes St., Arlington Heights, is the designer of the new Elk Grove Township seal that was adopted by the board of auditors Monday night.

The seal depicts the past, present and future of the township and incorporates an elk, oak tree and fern in its design. The seal was among three entries submitted in a contest sponsored by the auditors to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the township being celebrated this year.

Mrs. Jackson received a $25 savings bond.

Community service board tabs Penly

The Elk Grove Village Community Service Board of Directors recently elected officers for the 1975-76 year.

Dick Penly will serve as president, replacing Ed Meikel who was elected vice president. LaVon Cooney will serve as secretary-treasurer.

The 13-member board is appointed by Village Pres. Charles Zettek to operate the agency that provides information and referral services to area counseling centers and operates the village Youth Employment Service, Meals-on-Wheels program and supplies a counselor to Elk Grove High School.

Author to discuss book

Author John Knoepfle will discuss his new book, "Our Street Feels Good," at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd., today at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

In addition to reading selections from his book, Knoepfle will be available to talk about his work in detail and the creative process in general.

Knoepfle's book and 10 others, all new works by Illinois writers, have been acquired recently by the library.

The author's visit and the packet of new books were made possible through the Witers-to-the-People program, an Illinois Arts Council program in cooperation with the Illinois State Library.

The 11 new books are: "The Bonnyclabber" (novel) by George Chambers "The Murphy Stories (short stories) by Mark Costello; "In The Hands of Our Enemies" (short stories) by Daniel Curley; "And if Defeated Allege Fraud" (short stories) by Paul Friedman; "Of the Map That Changes" (poems) by William Hunt; "Voo Doo Love Magic" (poems) by Angela Jackson; "Whetstone" (poems) and "Our Street Feels Good" (children's poems) by John Knoepfle; "The Osprey Suicides" (poems) by Laurence Lieberman; "Door To The Sun" (poems) by Ralph J. Mills, Jr.; and "Life Of A Queen" (poems) by Lisel Mueller.

Kathe honored by Alexian

Kathy Kathe, a child-care technician, was chosen June's employe of the month at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Kathe, 1108 Quarset Ct., Schaumburg, has been with the center since 1970.

Mrs. Kathe works in pediatrics. She received her training at the former St. Vincent's Orphanage, Chicago.

Schools offer alternative program

An alternative program for students disgruntled with school will be offered in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 next year in the five junior high schools.

The school board Monday night approved the program that will offer students experiences outside of academics and place them in special classrooms where they will be taught on an individual basis.

About 20 students will be in the program on a voluntary basis at each school. Each school also will have a teacher to coordinate the program's activities and help the classroom teachers plan academic programs to meet these students' needs.

EDWARD DeYOUNG, Dempster Junior High School associate principal, said the idea for the program came from the principals who realized a large number of students were not achieving academically because they could not see any purpose in their studies and have a poor self-concept. He said several high schools in the Northwest suburban area have similar alternative programs but that he is not aware of any being offered at the junior high school level.

"It's a first step to providing a diversity of relevant programs to meet students' needs," said DeYoung. "It's for those kids who are alienated from school."

The main emphasis of the program will be to build the student's self-concept, he said. "The way to increase their academic growth is not to zero in on the academics first. We have to work on their self-concept first and then see how it reflects on their school work.

"It is not that they are intellectually incapable of doing well, but a question of alienation and failure to see the relevance of their studies," he said

THE PROGRAM will include special field trips and vocational exposure to show them what can be done outside of the classroom, he said. Students also will be placed into groups of six to eight that will meet with the program's coordinator each day for the students to receive more personal contact in school.

The program will vary between the schools to meet the needs and problems of the school's community, DeYoung said. The goal of the program will be to integrate the student into the regular school structure before reaching high school.

In other action, the board approved a science curriculum that will use the Rand McNally Science Curriculum Improvement Study in kindergarten through sixth grade and the Silver Burdett and Prentice Hall programs for grades 7-8. The new materials will cost $90,313.

Gifted program among study group's goals

Better communication between the home and school, a review of the lunchroom program and formation of a gifted-student program were proposed by a special Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 committee as immediate goals for the district.

The goals committee presented its recommendations to the board of education Monday night after investigating needs in the district for five months and conducting public meetings to get suggestions from parents.

The committee also recommended that the district immediately look into alernatives to the current standardized tests and education programs and evaluate the daily time schedule.

MEDIUM-RANGE GOALS identified by the committee include:

- Better use and coordination of teacher aides.
- More workshops for teachers and encouragement for them to attend professional courses.
- More use of community resources.
- Review of the language arts program.
- Introduction of a pilot program to permit children to enter kindergarten early.

The committee also recommended that the district look into a long-range goal for improving the school environment or "climate."

The committee recommended that the district set up a program next year that would include a committee for establishing long-range goals, the orientation of the administration on the concept of school environment and the identification of each school's strengths and weaknesses in their environment.

The second year of the program would set up means of improving each school's environment and gaining community involvement through workshops. The third year would include orienting the students through workshops and forming a "climate curriculum."

The board acknowledged the report and plans to meet with the goals committee before taking action on the committee's recommendations.

Don't restrict teacher education: report

by WANDALYN RICE

College students should be able to study to become teachers even though they may not be able to get teaching jobs, according to a report made Tuesday to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The report, drawn up by a task force appointed by the higher board to deal with teacher education, says, "A general oversupply of teachers does exist and no significant change in this over-all situation is seen for the decade ahead."

Because of the surplus, the report says, "It is tempting for the state board of higher education to recommend restrictions or some sort of quota system upon those who would become teachers."

However, the task force specifically rejects that option, saying, "Students should have an opportunity to prepare themselves to compete in a marketplace regardless of the conditions which exist there."

AT THE SAME time, however, the task force recommends that the higher board encourage schools with teacher-training programs to review their admission standards and the minimum grade standards needed for students to continue in teacher-training programs. Such a review, the task force says, would ensure greater "quality control" on graduating teachers.

The report says a majority of public and private colleges offering teacher-training programs have tightened admission standards for the program. Among the standards tightened are requirements for certain grade-point averages, and higher scores on admission tests than those required to be admitted to the college or university.

However, the report also says most colleges and universities surveyed do not plan to increase the minimum grade average required for a student to remain in a teacher-training program once admitted. Twenty-one percent of the schools said they do expect to raise their standards.

The report notes that throughout the state, the number of teaching jobs available each year has stayed relatively constant in the past few years. Before 1970, the report says, the number of teachers needed in the state increased an average of 4,000 teaching jobs each year.

THE SLOWING of growth in the number of teaching jobs available, along with an increase in the number of students graduating with degrees in education, has resulted in the general teacher surplus, the report says.

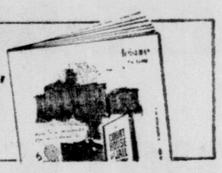

However, the report says shortages still exist in teachers for vocational courses, special education, bilingual education and health education. The reason for the shortages, the report says, are primarily because the number of classes in those areas have increased rapidly in recent yeas.

The report recommends that the higher board encourage colleges to develop more qualified teachers in those areas to make up for the shortage.

The task force also found, in surveying colleges and universities with teacher-education programs, that smaller numbers of students are choosing to major in education, apparently as a result of news that teaching jobs are increasingly hard to get.

The task force was composed of college deans, teachers and business people from throughout the state. The higher board is expected to study the recommendations before taking action.

Treat diabetes without drugs

My husband is 72 years old and has incipient diabetes. About 1½ years ago the doctor put him on a 1,000-calorie diabetic diet and he lost 50 pounds. We cut out practically all sugar. I use some in bread.

He might eat a piece of pie three or four times a year. He hasn't had to take insulin and has had no bad sugar counts since.

We eat fresh fruit, but I'm wondering about honey. He doesn't miss the sugar, but he would like honey once in a while. Would honey act like sugar or fruit?

Many people with moderately elevated blood-sugar tests will have normal test results after losing weight. This is one reason why it is a mistake to put overweight people with diabetic blood tests on a pill rather than putting them on a proper diet.

As far as I'm concerned, the only sensible approach to managing diabetes is to eliminate any excess obesity before deciding what kind of treatment you must use. Of course, some cases are more urgent and require immediate treatment while weight reduction is being accomplished, but you never should rely on medicine rather than correctiong your weight and diet problems.

Honey acts in the body the same as sugar. Once they are both absorbed into the bloodstream they are both used to elevate the blood-sugar level.

I am expecting my first baby and I want to nurse it. My husband wants me to also. But all my in-laws are against it and keep trying to talk me out of it.

My doctor is all for nursing and told me the benefits are numerous, but he didn't elaborate. So, I'm hoping you can help by telling me some things I might like to pass on to my in-laws. Prenatal books say nursing is best but tell little else.

I am reminded of one of my teachers in pediatrics who always finished his remarks on the advantages of breast feeding by noting that the milk came in such cute containers.

A good many of the advantages are the conveniences. The problems of sterilized bottles and formula feeding and complications with formulas simply do not occur if a mother is able to provide complete nursing for the baby. There is less likelihood of a food-borne digestive upset for the baby.

Some think there are psychological advantages, too, in the closensss that develops when the baby is held against the mother's breast for feeding. The maternal heartbeat and all those things seem to have an impact on psychological development.

Air bubbles and other mechanical feeding problems do not occur.

Of course, you can always remind your in-laws that it means their son won't have to get up at night to feed the baby. And, in the last analysis, I think mothers should do what they want to do in accordance with their doctor's advice — not what either set of grandparents wants them to do.

Say hello to the Styczynski family and their five kids. One of our most protected families in all Illinois.

It's been a busy—and unusually difficult—time for the Styczynskis since we first got to know them.

Knee surgery. A disc operation. Open heart surgery (very successful, we're happy to report). And four babies.

The Styczynskis have learned as much about us as we have about them by now. They had to read up on their benefits. They had to know.

We hope you won't wait until you need us to do the same.

RTA to sell program 'positively'

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Regional Transportation Authority will try to make its new suburban bus program attractive to residents after service gets started, according to its newest proposals released Monday.

Board member Joseph Tecson, Riverside, said the incentives are more important than the negative approach that has been used before. He said people have been warned too often that gasoline will run out, that cars pollute the air or that autos will hopelessly clog the area's highways and streets. He praised the marketing program that will try to sell public transportation on a positive basis.

The positive approach includes an annual pass, priced at $100, that would allow ridership on the Chicago Transit Authority system and suburban buses for 10 cents a trip. The pass might be available through payroll deductions for persons using public transportation to get to work.

OTHER INCENTIVES include the "Universal Commuter Pass" for $10 over the price of a monthly commuter train ticket. It would allow unlimited use of buses and rapid transit.

Two other programs are aimed directly at suburbanites who might travel to Chicago only occasionally. The "Day in Town" program would allow a round-trip commuter ticket to Chicago for the price of a one-way ticket plus 10 cents during offpeak hours. It also would allow free travel on CTA buses.

The second plan has been called "Family Ride on the House," which would allow a monthly commuter train pass buyer to take his family to Chicago on a Saturday or Sunday during the month after the pass expires.

A FEDERAL requirement for funding would provide half-fare during nonpeak hours for elderly and handicapped riders throughout the system. All the incentive programs would require RTA subsidy.

Increasing the use of the system will be a critical problem, most observers agree. Disenchantment with buses has forced the bankruptcy of several suburban bus systems, including the near closing of the United Motor Coach Co., Des Plaines.

The Metron bus system serving Arlington Heights and part of Buffalo Grove also folded shortly after its initiation, but owner Claude Luisada blames it on lack of local financial support for a reasonable length of time.

LOCAL SUPPORT may be a key issue in the RTA proposals, because the board has planned on only 80 per cent funding of community-oriented routes.

"I'm very much aware that the RTA funds are limited, and it would behoove all suburban communities to seriously consider being participants and picking up part of the tab," Luisada said. Such participation might multiply the amount and quality of service a community could have, he said.

The RTA has now proposed one route from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights that would closely parallel part of the former Metron system, even though Metron was not successful with the program. Luisada says any system must operate a few years before it can be evaluated, and on that basis Metron lost financial support before its system could be fully tested.

THE NEW $174.1 million budget and program proposal will be on display in local libraries this week, and local officials and residents have indicated an interest in attending the public hearings beginning June 12. The plan calls for 63 new suburban bus routes and improvement of commuter rail service in some areas.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky has said some changes could become effective within a few months if the proposals are accepted after the hearings. The program as prepared will not require the gasoline or parking taxes that the board has the power to levy, but Pikarsky would not rule out the taxes completely. He said various changes, including a decrease in the amount of money expected from the federal government, could force the RTA to consider other income.

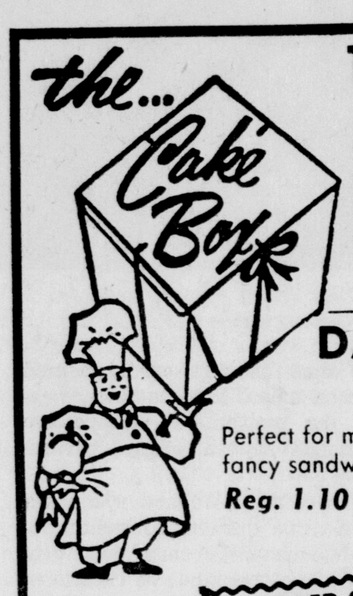

Cite Herald for presentation

The Herald has received a first-place award for general excellence of presentation in competition sponsored by Suburban Newspapers of America (SNA).

The advertising and promotion awards were announced recently at the SNA's meeting in New Oreleans.

The winning Sept. 26 and Sept. 27, 1974 issues of The Arlington Heights Herald were judged on the basis of style of presentation, typography of editorial material and advertisements, and printing and reproduction.

Paddock Circle Newspapers, a group of six weekly papers in Lake County, received three awards in the same SNA contest. They won a first place for best publication promotion/multi-media and certificates of excellence for best publication promotion/in-paper and for general excellence of presentation.

PE classes must be equal: HEW

"that will please all of the people all of the time."

AFTER WEINBERGER'S press conference, officials of the Project on Equal Educational Rights, a Washington-based group that monitors HEW enforcement of civil rights and sex-discrimination laws, said the "regulations do not provide equal opportunity in education." The organization pointed out that the rules will not take effect until 1978 for colleges and high schools, even though the law was passed in 1972. Also, the rules "do not deal in any manner whatsoever with the problem of stereotyping in textbooks," the group said.

Local school officials said Tuesday they would have to study the regulations closely to determine their impact.

Richard Kinneman, coordinator of athletics and physical education for High School Dist. 214, said the rules probably will not have much effect on the athletic programs of the Mid-Suburban League, which includes High School Dist. 211. The league, Kinneman said, already has agreed on guidelines to provide separate boys' and girls' athletic competition in many sports.

Kinneman and other school officials did say, however, that the requirement to integrate physical-education classes may cause problems.

"We do have coeducational PE classes on an experimental basis at Forest View High School," he said. "I wouldn't think that the physical-education people around the country would agree that every class should be coeducational."

Kinneman said, "I can see that if these are the rules, our orchesis classes will have to have boys in them. I'm glad they gave us three years to go about making any changes. There are going to have to be some difficult things to iron out if every class has to be coeducational."

KENNETH OLSON, athletic director at Maine West High School, said he could see problems with integrating physical-education classes because, "If we were to put a boy and girl together in class in PE, the boy would no doubt be predominant because of his strength and speed and size. It wouldn't be fair to the girl."

Elementary-school officials said the requirements for integrated PE classes probably would present no problem in elementary schools where classes usually are integrated, but would cause changes in junior high schools.

Wayne Shaible, superintendent of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, said, "I imagine the classes (in junior high) could be integrated, but it would take a total rescheduling." He also said integrated classes would cause problems with supervision of lockerrooms because a male teacher would not be able to supervise a girl's lockerroom and a female teacher would not be able to supervise a boys' lockerroom.

KENNETH GILL, superintendent of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, said the new rules will have no effect through the fifth-grade because those classes are integrated. In junior high, he said, "We mainly have separate but equal. We have about three units during the year where boys and girls get together. A lot of times they are in the same gym together but at opposite ends."

Oh, that memo! We never overrule or ignore memos, we hide them!

Herald opinion

Mystery memo must be probed

A secret staff report, an apparent coverup and an official denial have added new questions to the dispute over location of a huge sewage-treatment plant n Des Plaines.

From the start, the decision to build the plant at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road was an error. It ignored the rights of several hundred nearby homeowners, threatening their neighborhood and property values.

A review of the project by staff members of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency concluded just that. They urged in a strongly worded memo that the plant site be moved from the Des Plaines neighborhood.

But then the agency turned around and approved construction of the plant on the original site. Agency officials deny that the staff recommendation was ignored or overruled. And the memo, they say, is confidential and they won't provide copies to the public or to U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

We urge Crane to demand a congressional investigation of the Environmental Protection Agency's handling of the plant review. Rejection of the staff recommendation indicates that normal standards may not have been followed in determining the plant's impact on the community.

The Environmental Protection Agency seems to have joined hands with the Metropolitan Sanitary District in holding on to a sewage plant site that is clearly unacceptable by even the flimsiest of standards.

We wonder how much other information unfavorable to the site choice is in the hands of these two agencies. A congressional inquiry might help them to come clean and open their files to public inspection.

As the federal staff memo pointed out, the sanitary district has another site south of the Northwest Tollway and west of Elmhurst Road. We would like both agencies to justify their decision not to use this alternate property.

We also congratulate Richard Ward, a Des Plaines alderman, for unearthing an "overlooked" copy of the memo in the Environmental Protection Agency's files and releasing it. It provides ample justification for a thorough review of the agency's handling of this matter.

Play ball! And help remember Hal Sprehe

Great sports and a good cause are the double attractions of the Second Annual Hal Sprehe Memorial All-Star Baseball Game, which will be held on Sunday, June 15, at Wheeling High School.

The event will feature standout prep players from Dist. 214 and Dist. 211 schools as well as St. Viator High School. It honors the late baseball coach of Forest View High School, who died in a home accident six years ago.

Proceeds from the game will be directed into a fund bearing his name which will eventually provide scholarship assistance to worthy local athletes.

Gametime is 1 p.m., and the roster of players promises a great game. Advance tickets, at $1 for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children, are available at the Herald office; admission at the gate will be 25 cents higher.

If you don't usually have a chance to watch the exciting game of prep baseball, this would be a good opportunity to see it at its best, and help a worthy cause.

First, get their attention

War against bureaucrats

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A classic of American story telling is the one about the farmer who can't get his mule to pull a load. He seeks aid from a neighbor, who fetches a two-by-four and administers a mighty whack to the animal's hindquarters.

The neighbor then takes the reins, clucks softly and the mule begins to pull with enthusiasm. "You've got to reason with mules," the neighbor says.

"But first, you've got to get their attention." Citizens sometimes have the same kind of problem with government. The catch phrases for it are "bureaucratic red tape" or "unresponsive government," but it comes down to the same thing: The mule won't move.

The citizens' two-by-four in this case is supposed to be the election process. If the governed are dissatisfied with the government, they can put new people in office to do it right. In simpler times, that system worked because elected officials actually conducted or directly supervised government activities on a day-to-day basis.

Precious few elected officials now are close enough to the conduct of public business to see that it is done efficiently and right. Especially in the federal colossus but increasingly in state and local government, the bureaucracy is the government's link with the citizenry and the ballot as an instrument of accountability has, at best, only indirect impact.

GOV. GEORGE C. WALLACE

For some time now, candidates and occupants of public office have recognized the problem of unresponsive government by attacking bureaucracy.

Gov. George C. Wallace, who has a real talent for distilling complex problems into simplistic complaints, gets rousing responses when he excoriates the "pointy-headed bureaucrats."

Much of the problem is caused by laws that protect career civil servants against partisan political pressures and that try to protect public funds from graft and other forms of theft.

So what to do? Some elected officials — former Rep. Joel Broyhill of Virginia was famous for it — simply heckle, kibitz and badger bureaucrats into performing for their constituents.

Other suggestions have focused on the ombudsman idea — appointing government officials to speak for the public within the government. But that is a crack-plastering exercise: The government is supposed to work for the public in the first place.

John G. Stewart, a consultant to the Democratic National Committee, offered another kind of proposal last year in his book "One Last Chance." On the premise that a vital task before politicians today is to "restore the popular belief that government, especially the federal govenment, can function competently and fairly," Stewart offers a series of suggestions, including a plan to penalize government for failing to meet its obligations to the public.

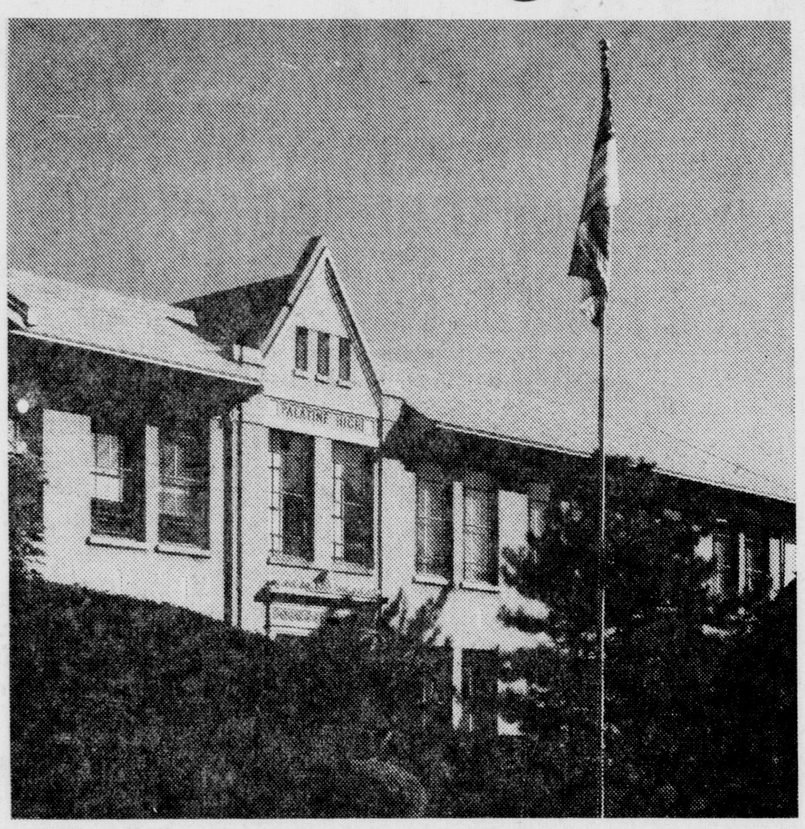

"If a citizen falls down in meeting his obligations to government, the citizen pays a penalty," Stewart writes. "If government defaults in meeting a commitment to citizens, the same thing should happen.

"The Internal Revenue Service, for example, might be required to pay 6 per cent interest on all personal income tax refunds that are not processed within 30 days of the citizen's filing his tax return."

Stewart's idea might not work as well as a two-by-four, but it might take some of the exasperation out of trying to get the mule to move.

The Fence Post: letters to the editor

Palatine High decision 1-2 years off

The school board members of High School District 211 join me in thanking you for your paper's recent editorial about our actions on the future of Palatine High School.

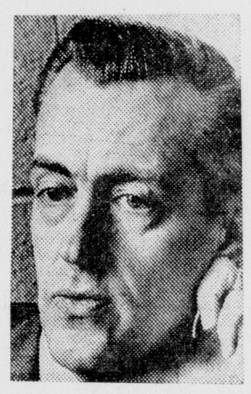

Since complimentary editorials are not exactly an everyday event for school boards, it pains me to toss out a wet rag so quickly.

Perhaps I am overly sensitive, but I read the editorial to infer that the old high school building on Wood Street may be someday turned over to some Palatine organization such as the Village or Park District.

I must temper that inference. If the building and land becomes surplus to District 211's needs, it will have to be sold at fair market value. We cannot, under law, give it away.

A final point: Our decision date is at least one, if not two, years out in the future.

. . . for Grenaissance

Dear Bob Gallas:

Now that Grenaissance IX is winding down to a close, I want to thank you for your help and support. A program of this size could not begin to take shape without the efforts of people like you who brought our events to the attention of the public. The coverage we received in The Herald was complete, interesting and eye-catching. I thank you for it on the behalf of the whole humanities division.

. . . for Mayfair

On behalf of the Schaumburg Park District, I would like to publicly thank Genie Campbell, Stirling Morita, Pat Gerlach, and Dom Najolia for giving our "Mayfair," our third outdoor craft and hobby show, such splendid publicity. It was most appreciated and surely added to the show's success.

. . . for publicity

Dear Mrs. Scott:

I wish to thank you and Dorie McClellan for all your help this past year. You both made my job a lot easier and I was very proud of my publicity notebook. I have received lots of comments on our coverage this year and I have you both to thank.

Our pictures were especially nice. They promoted our fund raisers and helped to make our allocations of more than $2,000.

Thank you both again.

. . . for comfort

I wish to thank all the lovely people of Mount Prospect and surrounding communities for sending good wishes to my husband, Bob. Believe me, he has read and enjoyed each one. The hospital stay has been long and it has been brightened by all the people who were kind enough to call or send a card.

A big thank you to all the policemen and paramedics who were able to take him immediately to the hospital on the day of his accident.

It is comforting to know in a time of stress there are capable people available to come to your aid.

Again, thanks to all.

Mrs. Robert Ferguson
Mount Prospect

P.S. Our favorite card was the front page of the Mount Prospect Herald May 16.

. . . for kindness

Palatine Fire Department:

Please accept my heartfelt thanks and that of my family for the wonderful kindness you showed in transporting my husband to the Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The incident happened Saturday morning, May 3, about 3 or 4 a.m.

We had just moved into the apartment at Countryside on Monday, April 28, and during the night Friday my husband became ill and was rushed to the hospital by your very capable young men. You are truly remarkable and should be commended.

My husband suffered a stroke and is still in the hospital but the wonderful gentle way that you handled the situation cannot be overlooked.

Mrs. W. R. Bard
Palatine

. . . for the speech

We just wanted you and everyone else to know what a delight we found Dorothy Oliver to be!

She was guest speaker for publicity chairmen who attended the Spring School of Information Monday night, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Council of PTAs.

Mrs. Oliver explained away "myths and rumors" about preparing news for The Herald and she suggested ways publicity chairmen can develop good news coverage for PTA activities. She offered specific tips, but with a dash of humor.

We very much appreciate the time she spent with the PTA chairmen Monday and the coverage she has arranged throughout the year for the 18 PTA units of the Arlington Heights Council of PTAs.

. . . for the coverage

On behalf of the Ladies Auxiliary to Elk Grove V.F.W. Post No. 9284, I wish to personally thank Marianne Scott and her staff for the wonderful coverage given to our organization during the past year.

On Sunday, May 18, our auxiliary took first place in the publicity book competition at the 4th District auxiliary convention. Our book now will be entered in the State of Illinois competition at the Department convention which will be held in June.

I wish to thank The Herald for all the help it has been to our Post and Auxiliary in assisting us publicize our special programs, such as Poppy Day, Hospital, Americanism, and youth activities, and in publishing our fund raising events, which made our participation in these programs possible.

The almanac

Today is Wednesday, June 4, the 155th day of 1975 with 210 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

American singer Robert Merrill was born June 4, 1919. This also is the 50th birthday of actor Dennis Weaver.

On this day in history:

• In 1896, Henry Ford wheeled his first car from a brick shed in Detroit and drove it around the darkened streets for a trial run.

In 1942, the "Battle of Midway" began, in which the Japanese fleet suffered its first decisive defeat by American forces in World War II.

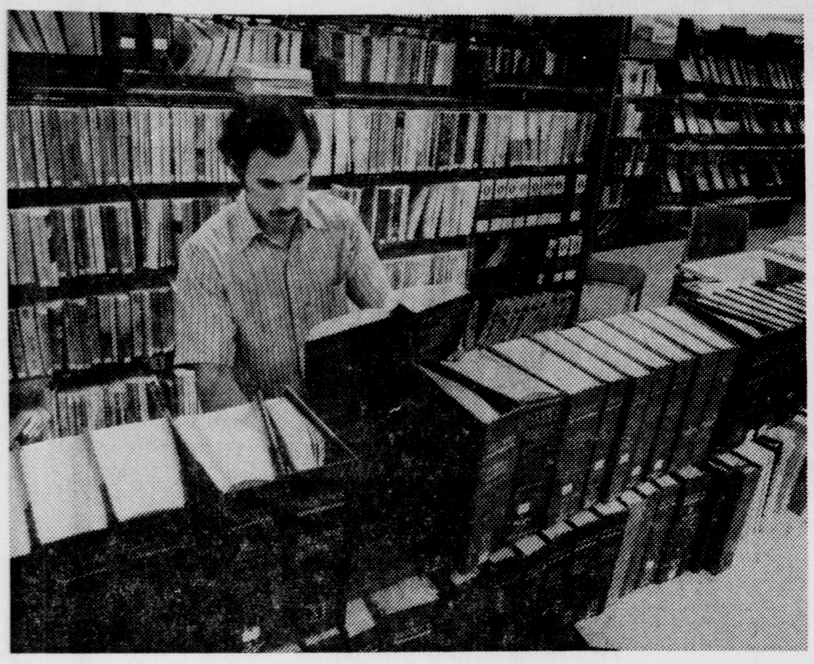

• In 1967, war broke out between Israel and Egypt. It lasted six days and Israel emerged victorious, taking vast areas of Arab territory it still holds.

In 1972, black militant Angela Davis was acquitted of murder, kidnaping and criminal conspiracy charges stemming from a California courtroom shootout in which a judge and three others were killed.

EVERYTHING YOU want to know about business is there for the asking at Schaumburg Township Public Library. Phil Goldman of Schaumburg is one of thousands of Northwest suburban residents who use the special business library monthly. Corporations and other public libraries are big users, too.

Schaumburg Township

Library in the know on business

by STEVE NOVICK

If you need to contact a small company in Idaho or want to know current economic trends in Argentina, call the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

A special business collection at the Schaumburg facility is equipped to provide information needed by business people, said Michael Madden, director.

The collection includes nearly 9,000 general and business reference books. "That doesn't sound like a huge number but for practical types of needs it can handle 95 per cent of the inquiries received," Madden said.

THE COLLECTION, rounded out by priodicals, pamphlets, directories, cassettes and films on business subjects, is compiled carefully.

At academic libraries a book on the economics of sheep herding in the 18th Century might be on the shelves, but not in Schaumburg.

Instead, thousands of people come to the library each month to find out cost-of-living indicators for different parts of the country, price trends in stocks and commodities, how to incorporate a business in Great Britain and information of computer payroll systems.

Madden is particularly proud of the library's collection of directories that includes listings for every business, trade and professional association in the country.

IF SOMEONE WANTS to know how to line themselves up at a particular trade show, they can find out how to make contact using the Schaumburg facility, he said.

Many of the inquiries come over the phone and most phone inquiries are from corporate libraries who don't have the needed information at their own facility.

And if the library doesn't have the answer to an inquiry on its shelves it knows where to call for the answer.

Calls from business people may be placed at 885-3373.

THE SCHAUMBURG business library was established in 1973 through the North Suburban Library System with $27,500 of the NSLS money and $33,000 of the Schaumburg library's money going toward expanding the business collection.

It's part of several special library sections developed through NSLS in the north and Northwest suburban area with Evanston specializing in art, Arlington Heights in education and Skokie in literature.

Another section of the business library that makes Madden boast is the tax section which, he said, includes updated information on every new law, ruling and court case involving taxation.

THE BUSINESS collection is rounded out by volumes on subjects such as management, personnel, marketing, public relations and 1,000 government pamphlets on business.

Periodicals include The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, a weekly dating back to 1920 that gives complete market standings. It has everything the Wall Street Journal offers and more, Madden said.

Monthly sales reviews in numerous industries, shopping center directories and newspaper advertising rates are just a few of the information categories available.

The Schaumburg Township Public Library is at 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg.

Majority of governors back capital punishment

by United Press International

A majority of the nation's governors favor some form of capital punishment, most on grounds that it deters criminals.

A United Press International poll of the 50 U.S. governors shows 28 favor a death sentence and 17 are against it. The other five refused to take a stand.

Support for capital punishment among governors is heaviest in the South, where only Gov. Ray Blanton of Tennessee, which has passed a death penalty law, opposes it.

"I've always been opposed to capital punishment and I'm still opposed to it," he said.

OPINIONS IN each of three other regions — the West, Midwest and Northeast — broke about even.

One of the strongest supporters of capital punishment is Gov. Julian M. Carroll of Kentucky who, as a private attorney, once defended the last man executed in his state.

"Capital punishment has a strong deterrent value; and as long as it is saving innocent lives, I am for it," he said. "I believe if there were a referendum in Kentucky on the issue of capital punishment, it would be favored by a margin of 3 to 1 or better."

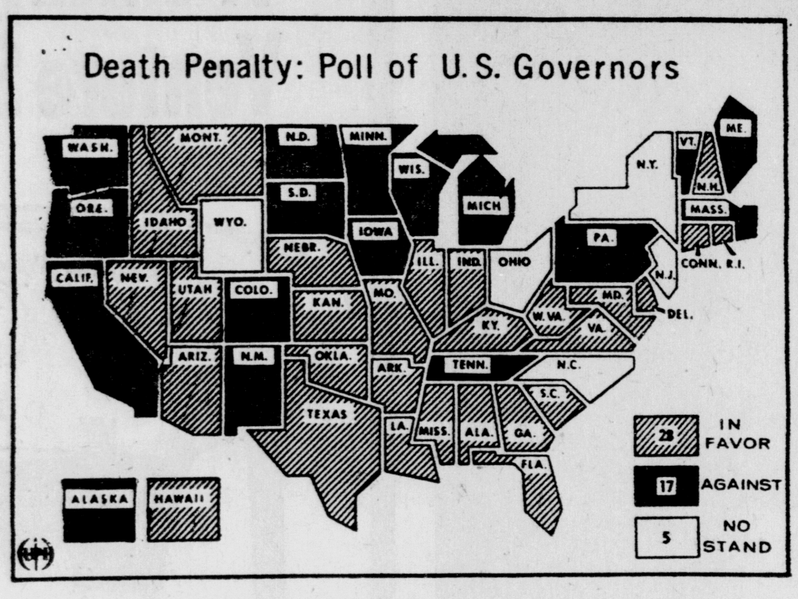

Of the 28 governors who favor capital punishment, 16 said it is a deterrent. Others said it is the will of the people or that the death penalty is justified by heinous crimes.

But Gov. Dan Evans of Washington, a strong opponent of the death penalty, said it should not be used as retribution. He said it is against the Christian ethic, and he scoffed at arguments that capital punishment is a deterrent.

"IF IT IS A deterrent, then let's make it a deterrent — by making it widespread, by making it public, by ensuring that every execution is on color television where it can have the maximum deterrent effect," he said.

Of the 17 governors against the death sentence, seven said it is not a deterrent. Five said they have personal aversion to capital punishment. Others said the state has no right to take a life, the penalty is cruel and unusual or there is no appeal once the execution has taken place.

Thirty-three states have death penalty laws. The electric chair is authorized in 29 and the gas chamber in nine. In Delaware, New Hampnhire, Idaho and Montana death by hanging is authorized by law. And in Utah, a death sentence could be carried out by hanging or by a firing squad.

No one has been executed in the United States since Luis Jose Monge, 48, was put to death in the Colorado gas chamber June 26, 1967. He was convicted of bludgeoning his pregnant wife to death and killing three of his 10 children.

The Supreme Court ruled in June of 1972 that capital punishment was unconstitutional because it was ap-

Girl Scout council takes look at Chicago history

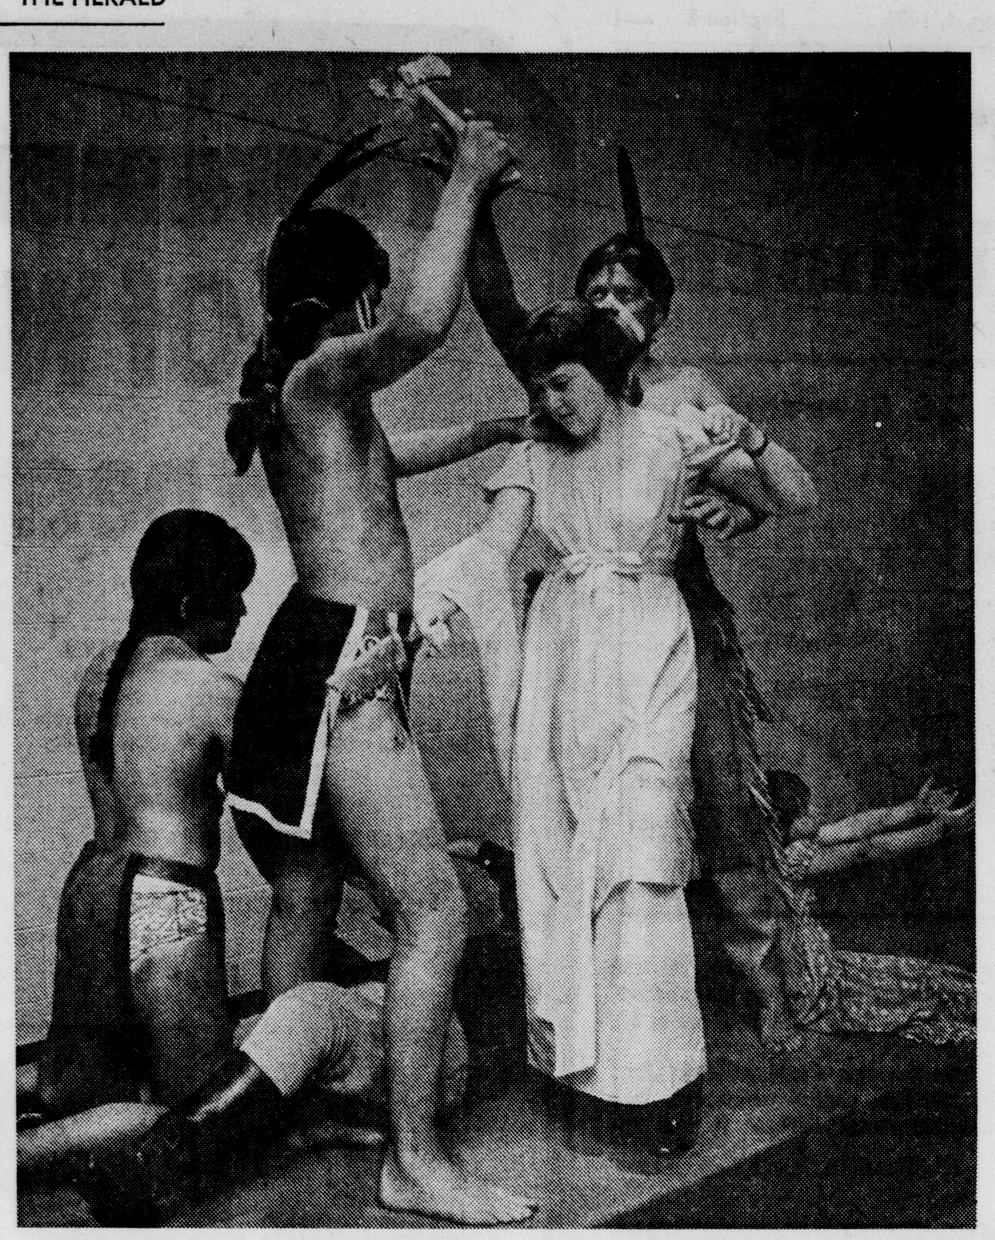

Members of the Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council took a local look into the history of scouting at its second annual meeting.

The statue of the Fort Dearborn Massacre, which sits in the Near North side of Chicago, was sculpted by artist Carl Rohl-Smith in 1893 and presented to the Chicago Historical Society.

The woman who is about to be scalped by Indians in the statue scene is Margaret Helm, a great aunt of Girl Scout founder Juliette Lowe.

She was saved from the hatchet, however, by Chief Black Partridge, who was loyal to a relative of hers. Legend says the chief saved her by pretending to drown her at a nearby stream.

The statue originally stood at 18th Street and Calumet in Chicago, the massacre site.

Dow drops .47 after 2-day gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average, up and down within a two-point range most of the day, finished with a loss of 0.47 points to 846.14 Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange. It gained 31 points the previous two sessions.

Stanjrd & Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator than the Dow, reached a new 1975 high by climbing 0.31 to 92.89. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 11 cents. Advances topped declines, 880 to 548, among the 1,843 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 26,560,000 shares, down slightly from the 28,240,000 traded Monday. The Dow Jones utilities' average rose 1.66 to 82.37, a new 1975 high.

CONSOLIDATED EDISON gained 1 1/8; Virginia Electric & Power and Public Service Electric & Gas, ¾ apiece; and American Electric Power, 5/8.

William Cos. gained 1½ following reports it had made a significant oil and gas discovery in Louisiana. Among the other oils and related issues, Getty Oil soared 9½ and Superior Oil, 5½. Mobil lost 2 1/8 and Exxon, 1¼.

Occiental Petroleum was the second most active issue on the Big Board, up 5/8 to 19 58/on 343,600 shares.

G. D. SEARLE, A 2 3/8 point loser Monday, led the actives, unchanged at 21 7/8 on 536,700 shares, including a block of 104,000 shares at 20.

Whittaker Corp. was the third most active issue, up ½ to 4 on 269,700 shares.

Pillsbury gained 2¾ after announcing termination of merger talks with Weight Watchers International. Weight Watchers lost 5 5/8 pointsin over-the-counter trading.

Prices closed higherin active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased one cent. Volume totaled 3,398,000 shares, compared with 3,881,000 traded Monday.

Majority of governors back capital punishment

plied arbitrarily. That ruling saved 600 death row inmates from execution, but since then 261 other persons have been condemned to die under new death sentence laws.

ONE OF THOSE cases, a man sentenced to die in North Carolina for murder, has been appealed to the Supreme Court again, giving the justices a chance to rule on the constitutionality of the new death penalty laws.

Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. of North Carolina — which has the most prisoners on death row, 69 — declined to say how he feels about capital punishment.

"I've deliberately tried to keep my mind from wandering into that area," he said. "The North Carolina case is going to be before the Supreme Court and it would be possible I would have to make some personal judgments of my own some time in the near future."

The other governors who refused to take a stand were Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey, Hugh Carey of New York, James A. Rhodes of Ohio, and Ed Herschler of Wyoming.

MANY OF THE other governors were troubled by the issue.

Colorado has passed a new death penalty law, but Gov. Richard Lamm is personally opposed to capital punishment. "The question is not the moral issue of the death penalty but the moral issue of when the executive should substitute his judgment for the judgment of the majority of the people," Lamm said.

"In these pressured times, with many day-to-day issues of vital importance, not a day goes by that I don't think about the death penalty hanging like a cloud and that decision that I face down the road."

How they voted on execution:

by United Press International

Here is how the governors of the 50 states responded to UPI's poll on the death penalty:

Joseph Backus

Visitation for Joseph P. Backus is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Mr. Backus, 76, of Pinellas Park, Fla., died Monday in St. Petersburg Hospital, St. Petersburg, Fla. Born in Chicago, Aug. 26, 1898, he was a retired self-employed garage owner.

A funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 11 a.m. Thursday in St. Emily Catholic Church, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Anna, nee Donohue; a daughter, Mrs. Joanne (Wayne) Cordes of Mount Prospect; four grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Dimitt of Tinley Park, Ill. He was preceded in death by a brother, Stanley, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Murphy.

Family requests mass offerings appreciated.

Blanche Turek

Miss Blanche Turek, 86, of Des Plaines, died Sunday in the Graceland Nursing Home, Des Plaines. She was born in Chicago, Sept. 22, 1888.

Visitation is today in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, from 11 a.m. until time of funeral service at 1 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. Mark G. Bergman of Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines. Burial will be in Bohemian National Cemetery, Chicago.

She is survived by a brother, Daniel Turek of Des Plaines. She was preceded in death by two sisters, Mrs. Caroline Larson and Stella Turek.

Sigrid Nordlund

Mrs. Sigrid Nordlund, 84, nee Nelson, of Arlington Heights and Chicago, died Monday in Augustana Hospital, Chicago. She was born in Sweden, Feb. 23, 1891.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lillian (Thomas) Taylor of Arlington Heights; a son, Richard (Mercedes) Gustafson of Chicago; four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by two husbands, Edward Nordlund and David Gustafson.

Visitation is today from 4 to 9:30 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Funeral service will be at 1 p.m. Thursday in the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Arthur Wille of St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Roman A. Curlo

Roman A. Curlo, 56, a resident of Mount Prospect for 12 years, was pronounced dead on arrival Tuesday at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was employed as a machine operator for Parker Hannifin Corp., Des Plaines, with 24 years of service. A member of the Des Plaines Moose Lodge No. 604, he was born in Nebraska, Aug. 7, 1918.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Funeral service will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Ernest C. Grant of First Congregational Church, Des Plaines. Burial will be Friday in Clarksville Cemetery, Clarksville, Mich.

He is survived by his widow, Rosella E., nee Thurston; a daughter, Mrs. Beulah Ann (Morgan) Wheat of Clarksville, Mich.; three grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Catherine Lemburg, Mrs. Zavier Bauman and Mrs. Martha Boncyznski, and four brothers, Peter, Frank, Edward and Stanley Curlo, all of Nebraska.

First Viet family to make Chicago its home arrives

A mother, her brother and her three sons became the first of 500 Vietnamese refugees to arrive in the Chicago area for resettlement by the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago.

Vo Cam Van Thi, 35, a former computer technician in the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, and her family will be housed temporarily at the Sovereign Hotel on Chicago's North Side and will receive living expenses from the Jewish Federation.

Her husband, Pham Van Puoi, 36, is completing courses for kindergarten teachers and supervisors at the International Training Center for Community Services in Israel and will rejoin the family later this month.

Murderer gets 75 to 225

An 18-year-old youth from Robbins was sentenced to serve 75 to 225 years in prison Tuesday for the double murder and shotgun death of three cemetery workers in southwest suburban Alsip two years ago.

Thomas Riley was convicted of involuntary homicide by shooting to death one of the workers and then murdering two others to cover up the death of the first.

Criminal Court Judge John Hechinger said he felt Riley accidentally shot the first victim, Larry Foster, 19, but then deliberately chased, shot and killed Marvin Foster, 24, and broke into the cemetery office and killed William Todd, 47.

Illinois briefs

'ERA prospects bad'

The defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment by the Missouri legislature diminishes the amendment's chances for passage in Illinois, said former state Sen. Esther Saperstein, ERA's chief sponsor in the Illinois General Assembly.

Mrs. Saperstein said she was shocked by methods used to defeat the ERA in Missouri.

"It's just incredible how this is happening. I'm completely shocked by the fact that this mythical technique they're using to defeat it is so effective," said Mrs. Saperstein, who recently left the Senate to become a member of the Chicag City Council.

"The opponents are calling proponents Communists — it's a wave of McCarthyism," she said. She said the defeat in Missouri "is very damaging, very damaging" for the ERA in Illinois.

Thomas to be extradited

Plans to extradite police-shooting suspect James Perry Thomas Jr. to Washington were under way Tuesday while he ramained in the custody of U.S. marshals in Chicago.

Thomas, 22, Annondale, Va., is one of two men being sought in the May 21 shooting and wounding of U.S. Park Police officers Ronald Blankenship and Jane Marshall at the Jefferson Memorial in Washington D.C. The second suspect in the case still is being sought.

Tries for second escape

If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try, try . . . again. That's what Donald Jackson has been doing as he made his second unsuccessful bid to escape from a Cook County Courtroom Monday.

Jackson, 18, broke free of sheriff's deputies as they led the youth from a deputies as they led the youth from a lockup into the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge James M. Bailey.

The youth threw a chair in the path of a deputy and fled outside into the crowded fifth floor hallway. Two Chicago police investigators and the deputy chased Jackson through the halls, out a fire escape and down three flights before subduing him.

Win at bridge

Discards play important role

Today's hand from "Bridge Brilliance and Blunders" might well be titled "We'll never know." West's opening two-spade bid was one of those weak two-bids that are popular in tournament circles. Its effect, combined with East's jump to four, was to catapult South into six clubs.

Against a spade lead, South would have had no problems. He would simply ruff the second spade, draw trumps and claim.

West's singleton diamond lead gave South a problem. Two rounds of trumps left West with another. So South cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off the rest of his trumps to come down to two hearts, two spades and a diamond while dummy held king-queen-eight of diamonds and king-jack of hearts.

East had chucked all his spades and a diamond to come down to two hearts and three diamonds.

Now all South had to do was to play out dummy's diamonds. East won the last one and had to lead up to dummy's hearts.

Why the suggested title? If East had quickly unguarded his queen of hearts South would have been forced to guess where that card was. With ability to see around corners, he would have known enough to drop the queen. But he might well have finessed and gone down.

Big Money

by Ed Landwehr

A "Talk Show" personality draws ten million dollars a year and earns fifty thousand dollars for a single appearance in his off-time. For we who struggle along with a drawer full of installment booklets, this is fabulous.

But, lest you think you're in the wrong line, look at the other side of this TV coin. According to the Actors Guild, the average actor and model in television earns about fourteen hundred dollars a year. They must drive taxies, wash dishes and have many side jobs while hoping for the big break. The big money keeps them struggling and reaching, and most of them never make it.

And think about this too. If your TV picture isn't right, hazy, distorted or what-not, remember Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. This is where we star in television. By just dialing 255-0700, you get prompt and accurate electronic service. For a lot less money, too.

Hawks, WGN-TV get divorce

Wirtz made big mistake; TV hockey heads downhill

Mike Klein
Staff Sportswriter

Profound thinkers, politicians, managers of Little League baseball teams, enema bandits and owners of woebegone sports franchises aren't always around to comment whenever it appears they've made some gross miscalculation.

They shirk this responsibility by leaving town and not having a single phone number in the whole world where you can call them.

Consider, for instance, the early summer plight of our beloved Chicago Black Hawks, those gallant men of winter who took your money and ran but gave nothing in return. Or, at the most, gave very little.

You've possibly heard that the Hawks' blissful romance of 15 years with the WGN-TV boys has blown away in smoke curls (i.e. — miserable ratings).

And the Hawks' management was non-plussed when WGN offered just partial coverage next season of 41 road dates plus ensuing playoffs, should Chicago qualify.

The early line indicates that WGN sought to air about half the road contests. They've been doing the entire season and paying Hawk owner Arthur M. Wirtz Sr. an estimated one-half million dollars for the privilege.

But when the independent Chicago station revealed this new plan for decreased hockey emphasis, Wirtz rebelled. So the Hawks won't skate into your hearts from Channel 9 next fall, winter and spring.

When you dial the Black Hawk office, as we did Tuesday, there's nobody home who knows anything about 1975-76 local origination television.

And when we telephoned the Wirtz Realty Corp. there was a lady who said everybody is gone from town . . . all week. But only after she asked what we wanted, then put the phone on hold.

This same office watcher indicated there has been "no quarrel" with WGN over the quality of past coverage. Only that the Wirtzes (sons Arthur Jr. and Bill included) want all road games televised next year.

Where can we call Arthur Wirtz Sr.? Noplace, she said. Noplace in the whole world. He must be far, far away. Perhaps vacationing on a slow boat to China.

Then she accelerated: "Why you want this information? Are you a newspaper?" Obviously, this television hassle is one that Wirtz rather would have avoided.

There aren't enough hours to oversee all his vast holdings, let alone rebuild his National Hockey League team, let alone find a television station, let alone find a television station public evaluation.

Another man who does not comment freely is Al Sturges, program manager at WFLD-TV, Channel 32. That's because his independent Chicago station has entered into negotiations with the Hawks for 1975-76.

And WFLD should be successful at a dirt cheap price. The Hawks are flung over a waterfall without so much as a barrel of protection. But Sturges won't say that.

Wirtz blew it by not remaining with WGN. His Hawks aren't entertaining. At least they would have retained a respected station with sound, recognized announcers and a fine technical crew.

Now they're stuck out in the forest. None of Chicago's network affiliated stations want the Blackhawks in their programming. Here's how station manager Bob Walsh of WMAQ, Channel 5, tells it:

"With the network we carry (NBC) it would be a conflict," Walsh said. "Two (CBS), five and seven (ABC) carry full network entertainment programming which is far-and-away more popular and of more service to the community than a BlackHawk game.

"They're a fine hockey team (C'mon Bob . . . you're not watching!) but of limited interest," Walsh said. "Our programming is designed for the broad masses."

Program manager Ed Spray of WBBM, Channel 2, said, "We couldn't be affiliated with CBS and carry that many games (41 plus playoffs). To do that, we might as well drop the network." Of which there is no possibility.

Furthermore, Wirtz erred because hockey has declined into one of television's great sports duds. There was peak interest in the late 1960's but excessive expansion, a lack of superstars and the World Hockey Association have sent the NHL reeling.

NBC, which has been competing with CBS' basketball audience, killed its Sunday hockey Game-of-the-Week by recently submitting a 1975-76 NHL package which listed only the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"In your warm weather states, people cannot associate with an ice sport," explained Chuck Adams, New York City based publicist for all NBC sports programming.

"There's no reason why they'd watch a hockey game. These are the people we were trying to reach but we didn't get as many as we had hoped," Adams admitted.

"If they's a basketball game on one network and hockey on the other, they'll go with basketball."

Adams supplied some devastating figures which show there's almost no national audience for the watered down, expansion glutted NHL which absurdly expects to compete with baseball through the waning days of May.

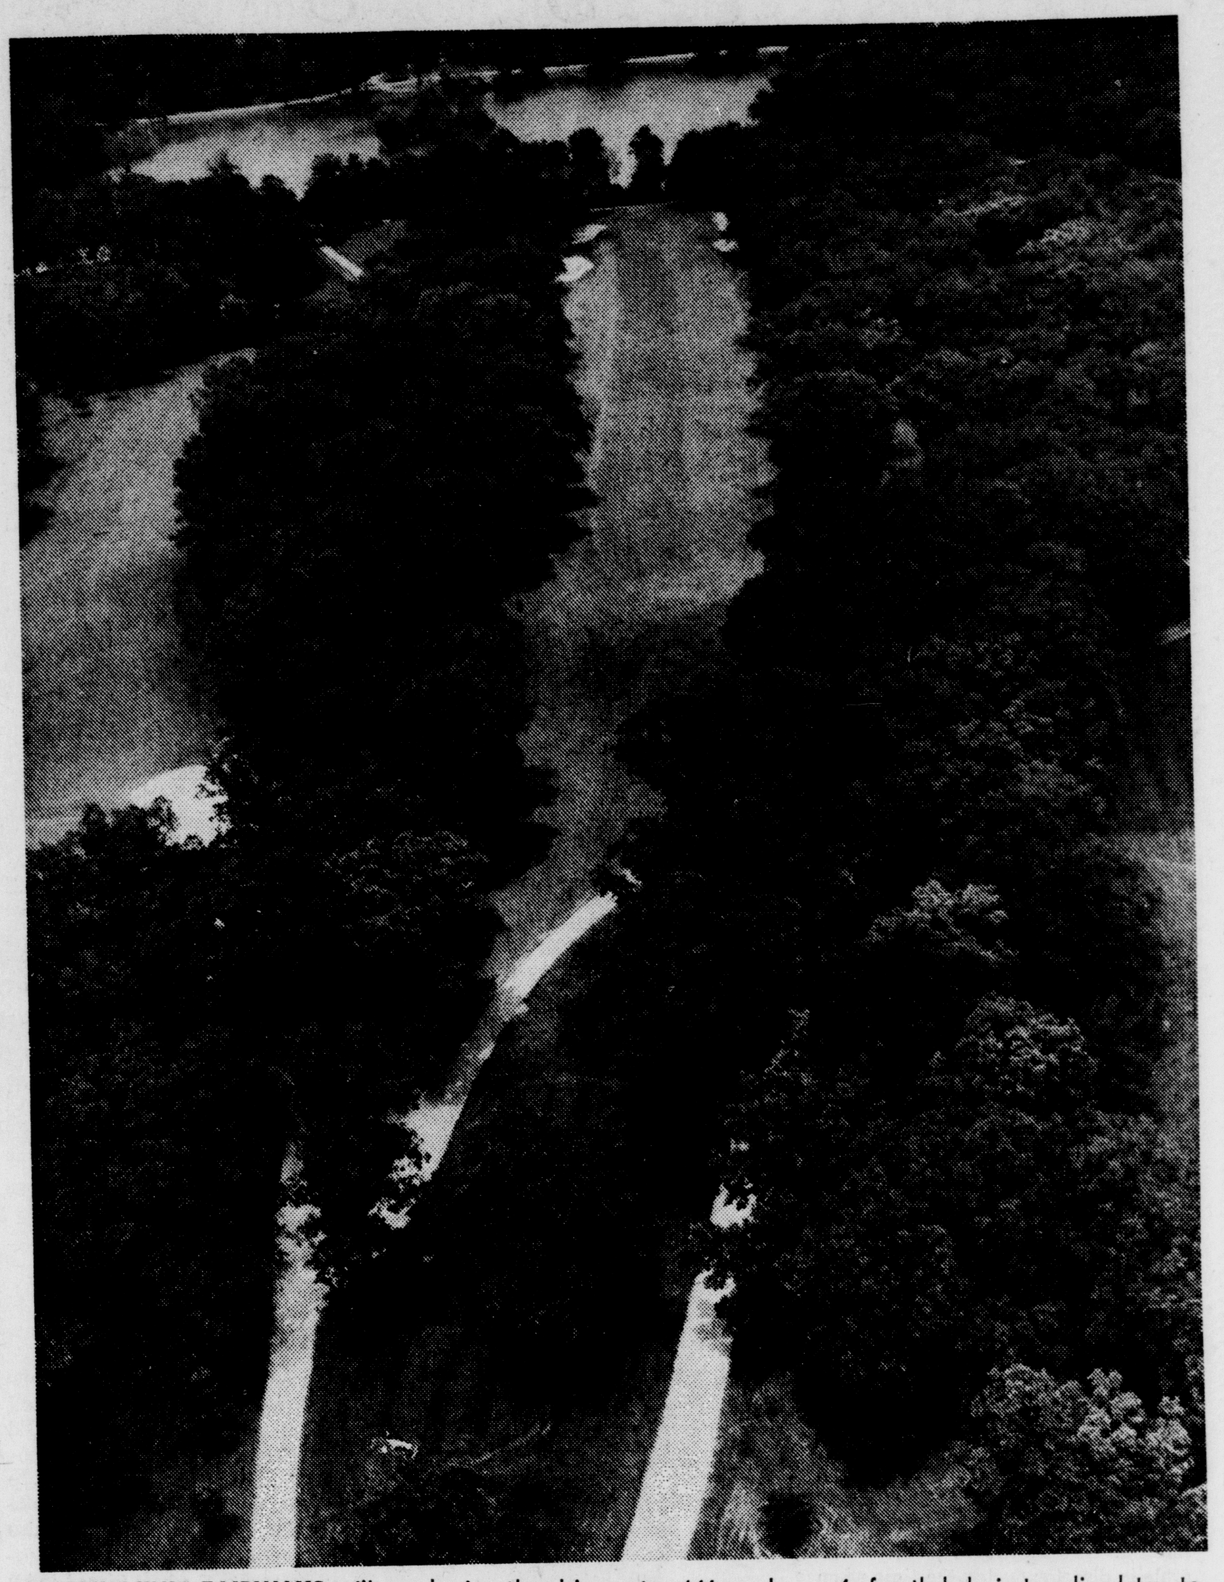

In current Nielsen ratings for January - February - March of this year (your premier hockey months), the NHL game placed a miserable 34th among 36 various sports programs shown by the major networks.

Remember when your recent NHL Stanley Cup playoffs were aired over WTTW, Channel 11, the public broadcasting station which has given us Monty Python's Flying Circus and culture, too?

Well . . . one Chicago source, who is high placed in the broadcasting field, said that occurred because the National Hockey League could not prevail upon any commercial station here. It seems they had heard about NBC's experience this year in which audience dwindled as Stanley Cup playoffs progressed.

Despite all those facts, his own miserable team and ratings which show the Black Hawks are clearly a television loser, going downhill each of the past five years, Wirtz chose to cancel WGN.

Seems like a bad move from here. Then again, I would have given Bobby Hull anything he wanted. Wirtz didn't and his team hasn't been the same since.

Despite lofty .257 team batting average

Hersey lacked speed on the bases

by ART MUGALIAN

Getting baserunners on base is one thing. Moving them around from scoring position to the plate is an entirely different proposition, as veteran Hersey coach Steve Chernicky can testify.

Although Chernicky's Huskies were third in the Mid-Suburban League in batting with a .257 average — quite an improvement over last year's .202 — they failed to take advantage. Hersey ranked 11th in the 13-team MSL in runs scored and ended in the cellar of the MSL North Division.

And, according to Chernicky, one of the prime reasons for the nonproduction was a lack of team speed.

"There's so much you can do with leg speed," said the coach, whose team finished 5-12 in the MSL and 5-13 over-all. "We just didn't have any of that quickness."

The Huskies had only five stolen bases all season, compared to 32 for North champion Arlington, 44 for league champ Rolling Meadows, and 31 for Buffalo Grove.

One in a series of reviews of varsity baseball seasons at schools in the Herald circulation area.

Stolen bases are just one measure of a team's ability to make things happen. Quickness on the base-paths can win ball games in many different ways.

"When you've got leg speed you can do so many things," Chernicky pointed out. "You can steal, you can hit-and-run, you can take the extra base. We just couldn't take advantage of some of our situations."

Still, the Huskies had talent. They had senior first baseman Don Bianchi, who was the third leading hitter in the league with a .417 average. Bianchi rapped out 20 hits, including six doubles, and drove home 14 runs. With 30 total bases, Bianchi's slugging percentage was .625, also third in the MSL.

The other top sluggers on Hersey's diamond squad were juniors Bob Frye, with a .282 mark; Mark Knuttel, at .283; and Tom Barnard at .286. Senior Gary Hart hit .275 and pitched 27 innings while he wasn't patrolling center field.

Jim Lococo and Dave Carey, both seniors, battened down the left side of the infield at third and short, respectively.

The Huskies were plagued by inexperience on the mound. Despite some strong performances, junior Bob Huber and sophomore Todd Walker carried losing records. Hart also owned a losing mark.

Hersey's team ERA was 3.97, the loftiest in the MSL, despite a yield of just 108 hits in 121 innings. However, the Husky hurlers allowed 93 walks, far more than any other team but Buffalo Grove.

"Walks really hurt us, there's no doubt about that," said Chernicky. "We put too many men on base and that places pressure on the fielders as well as the pitcher."

Next year, Chernicky will have Walker, Huber, and Dan Stoltz to work with on the mound, plus Knuttel, who filled in admirably as a left-handed catcher. Frye, who missed much of the 1975 season because of an ankle injury, will be back. Barnard, Mike Retondo, Chuck Veselits, and Steve Giannini will also return.

Chernicky will try to put it all together — hitting, running, pitching, fielding.

Reschedule softballers for weekend

Appearances by the defending Amateur Softball Association national champion Strikers and five-time ASA titlist Evanston Bobcats will highlight this week's completion of the Winston-Windy City Memorial Day Classic for 16-inch softball teams.

The tourney was plagued by rainstorms last weekend and was rescheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Meadows Park in Mount Prospect.

Eight games are scheduled for Saturday and include the Strikers against the Senators at six o'clock. a 7:30 p.m. game under lights will pit the Bombay Bicycle Club, sponsored by Chicago Bears linebacker Doug Buffone, against the Bobcats, national champs from 1969-73.

Saturday's games start at 3 p.m. with the Roadrunners against Bakers and Dwarfs against Fogs. The Flamingos and Baggers will replay their protested game at 4:30 p.m. while American Rivet Sobies meets the Roadrunners-Bakers winner.

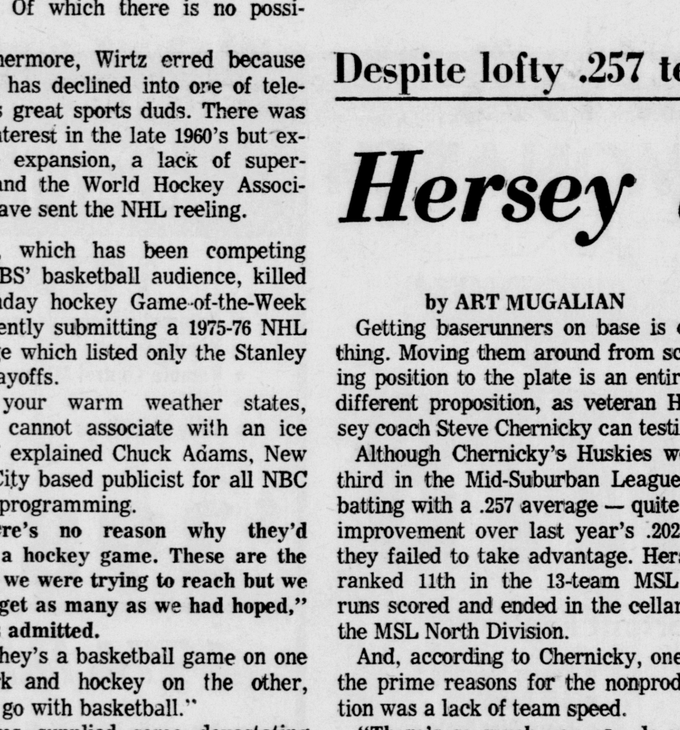

The next bracket at six o'clock includes the fine Strikers-Senators matchup plus winners from Dwarfs-Fogs and Flamingos-Baggers.

After the Bobcats-BBC game, the final night contest will have the Strikers-Senators winner playing the Oak Lawn Shoes at 9 p.m.

Sunday's final games will have semi-finals at 4:30 p.m., the consolation game at six o'clock and championship final at 7:30 p.m.

For additional information, contact Windy City Softball Association officials Tom Bonen (828-7471 days or 238-6146 evenings) or Bob Campbell (537-5372).

Cubs tip Giants, Sox falter

Bill Madlock, whose homer tied the game in the ninth inning, doubled with one out in the 10th Tuesday to score Don Kessinger from second base and give the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants. It was only the fourth loss in the last 13 games for the Giants and the fifth win in the last seven for the Cubs.

Meanwhile, seldom-used Dick Pole fired a three-hitter and rookie Jim Rice rocketed a three-run first inning homer Tuesday night, igniting the Boston Red Sox to a 4-0 win over the Chicago White Sox.

Pole, recording his first decision of the season in his fifth appearance, struck out eight batters and walked three. The 24-year-old right-hander from Trout Creek, Mich. gave up a bunt single to Pat Kelly in the third inning, a line single to Bill Melton in the fifth and a triple to Jorge Orta in the ninth.

Hawks tab center

The Chicago Black Hawks picked a center as their first choice in the National Hockey League draft Tuesday in Montreal. Greg Vaydik of the Medicine Hat Tigers got the nod after scoring 55 goals and assisting on 51 others in the Western Canadian League.

In the nine rounds that followed, the Hawks took Dan Arndt of the Saskatoon Blades, Mike O'Connell from the Kingston Canadiens and Pierre-Yves Giroux from the Hull (Que.) Festivals.

In the fifth round, the Hawks picked up Bob Hoffmeyer of Saskatoon followed by Tom Ulseth from the University of Wisconsin, Ted Bully from the Hull Festivals and Paul Jensen from Michigan Tech.

2 miss U.S. Open qualifying

Forty-three professionals and 14 amateurs played 36 sectional qualifying holes at Skokie Country Club in Glencoe for the U.S. Open golf championship Tuesday, but neither area hopefuls Bill Ventresca, the pro at Rolling Green in Arlington Heights nor Palatine's Jim Arendt, the pro at Skokie Country Club, could crack the elite seven-place field.

Arendt missed the 36-hole qualifying cutoff of 148 with rounds of 81-78—159 while Ventresca carded 83-79—162 over the par 37-35—72 course. The U.S. Open will be staged at Medinah Country Club, June 16-22.

Grens hoping long road will pay off next year

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

"When you're only doing one of the three things necessary to win ball games," said Larry Peddy, "you're going to have seasons like this."

Those three things — hitting, pitching and defense — were all missing from the Elk Grove attack at one time or another this year and the Grens paid for it with a 2-16 MSL record, the poorest in the league.

One in a series of reviews of varsity baseball seasons at schools in the Herald circulation area.

"When you hit .187 as a team you know you aren't going to win many games," Peddy, the Grove head coach, continued. "But I've seen teams win division titles with that kind of hitting because they had the pitching and defense.

"We just didn't do the right things."

The Grens are a young team, with 14 players back next year plus a promising sophomore who jumped to the varsity late in the season. Peddy is looking for better things next year when the maturity he hopes has developed takes over.

"I think the players learned a lot from this season," Peddy commented. "It was just that as the year went on, they got a negative attitude about themselves and started looking for ways to lose games rather than win them."

The Grens, after starting with a 2-3 record, dropped 14 straight games.

"The thing that hurt us most was giving up the big inning," Peddy said. "We'd hang in there for awhile and then get taken out of the game with the four-, five-and six-run inning. That happened several times."

Elk Grove had a steady leadoff man in Glenn Stromberg, whose 20 hits were nearly one-fourth the team total. He showed a .351 batting average, .439 slugging percentage and consistent glove work at second base and shortstop.

The only other Grenadier to collect more than 10 hits was Bill Strybel, a strong-armed outfielder who preserved a win over Hersey with a bullet throw from centerfield that caught the runner at the plate for the last out of the game.

Joe Woelfel, the sophomore promoted late in the season, hit .400 and added some depth to Elk Grove's beleaguered mound staff.

Bob Ray was the cornerstone of that staff, winning the Grens' only games and posting a 3.41 ERA. Kevin Stockwell, and Steve Kliff and Jeff Raver all recorded sub-2.00 ERAs.

Jeff Brisson to receive MVP trophy

Jeff Brisson, Fremd's former standout centerfielder and the Most Valuable Player at the first annual Hal Sprehe Memorial All-Star Game, will be on hand Sunday, June 15, to receive his award at game number two.

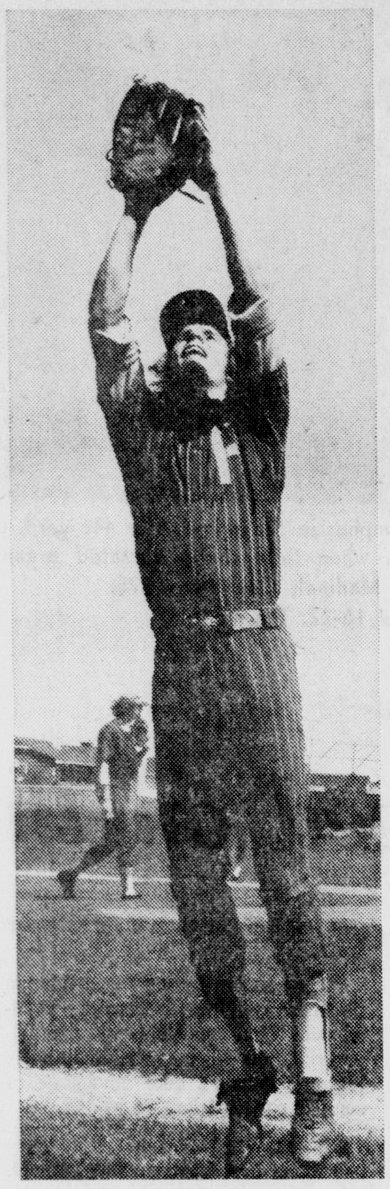

The second annual Hal Sprehe game is slated for the Wheeling High School diamond at 1 p.m., weather permitting. Bill Beckman, Forest View athletic director during the time when Hal Sprehe was the Falcon head baseball coach, will present the award to Brisson.

Other pregame ceremonies will include the introduction of all 40 participants, representing 13 schools in the area. The contest itself is a nine-inning game and all 40 players are expected to see action.

Brisson earned the MVP award last year when he led the North team to an 8-7 triumph with a two-for-four showing including a double, two runs scored and a pair of RBIs. The career of the ex-Viking speed merchant, the top hitter in the Mid-Suburban League in 1974, hasn't dipped a bit since then either.

At Western Iowa Community Junior College in Council Bluffs this spring Brisson clubbed 10 home runs and notched 52 RBIs over a 44-game schedule. He also stole an awesome 52 bases while forging an incredible .500 batting average.

By getting a base rap every other official trip to the plate, he wound up as the second leading collegiate hitter in the nation and has been named as one of six junior college players to participate on the national team in the World Games hosted by Montreal this summer.

FORMER FREMD standout Jeff Brisson, last year's MVP at the Hal Sprehe Memorial All-Star game, continues to swing a hot bat in college ball.

Five win balls in Smilers golf

Five women won golf balls for low putts of the day in the Smilers Golf League of Arlington Heights at Old Orchard Country Club.

The award for the A Flight went to Olga Anson and Lois Erd with 17 putts apiece. Winner in the B Flight, also with 17 putts, was Peg Fraizer. Seventeen putts was the best turned in by Rosalie Ball in the C Flight while 16 putts won the D Flight for Fran Lucas.

Olga Anson's 52 was the low score for the nine holes.

Buying an air conditioner?

There's one number you should know besides the price.

Before you choose an air conditioner, ask the dealer for its energy efficiency ratio. This number tells you the efficiency of a unit. An air conditioner with an EER number of 8 or above will be thrifty for you electrically.

The EER number is computed by dividing the BTUs by the watts. A 12,000-BTU unit that uses 1500 watts will rate an 8. If the EER doesn't appear on the tag or metal nameplate, use this simple formula yourself. It's a worthwhile exercise that can pay off in electric dollar savings over the long run.

Don't buy too much capacity. Surprisingly, an air conditioner that's too big usually won't keep you as comfortable as a smaller unit.

So measure the space to be cooled before you go to the dealer. Also note any doors that might let cool air escape, or windows that might let direct sunlight in. The dealer will have charts to translate your notes into the right air conditioner selection.

It makes a lot of sense to buy an air conditioner that starts efficient and stays efficient. And saving energy always makes sense.

Northwest Rebels open with triumph

The Northwest Rebels tuned up for their home opener with an abbreviated 4-3 win over the Pottawattomie Indians in the opener of the semi-pro Greater Illinois Baseball League Sunday.

The second game of the scheduled doubleheader will be replayed Saturday, June 7 at noon at Recreation Park.

The official home opener will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday, June 8 at Harper College. Jack Verdone, the sponsor of the team, and John Gelch, the athletic director at Harper, will throw out the first balls.

Randy Cordova, who is in his third year with the Rebels, threw six solid innings of baseball agains the Indians to claim the win. He scattered six hits and fanned 10 while allowing only one earned run.

In Pottawattomie's three-run fourth inning no balls got out of the infield.

Cordova will return to the mound in the second game of te Sunday doubleheader with the Schaumburg Buckeyes. Willie Kozel is scheduled to pitch the first.

Ron DeBolt, the head baseball coach at Wheeling High School, and Dave Lundstedt, a standout slugger at the University of Illinois, teamed up for the first Rebel run.

DeBolt opened the second inning by lashing a triple and came home moments later when Lundstedt singled.

In the three-run third inning George Vukovich started things off with a single then stole second. Wally Weiner then singled, pushing Vukovich to third.

A single by Scott Day brought home Vukovich and whe the Indians failed to catch Weiner going for third, Day advanced to second and the runners were safe all around.

Dean Sheridan, who hit .312 at Northeast Missouri State, then drove home two runs with a single. He finished the game at 2-for-3.

Arlington senior banquet

The Cardinal Booster Club will recognize the achievements of all Arlington senior athletes, boys and girls, their cheerleaders and coaches at the Sixth Annual Senior Letterpersons Banquet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Elks Club No. 2048.

The special guest for the occasion will be 26-year veteran Evanston football coach Murney Lazier. The University of Illinois grad will speak about his incredibly successful 174-24-4 coaching record that included 18 football championships and the mythical state champion banner in 1960-61-66-67-68-71.

While at Evanston, Lazier-coached teams won 127 and lost just 15 as he was named Coach of the Year in 1964, 1970 and 1971. During one point under his tutoring, Evanston ran off 26 straight triumphs and six undefeated seasons.

Doubling as Evanston's head wrestling coach, Lazier's record reads 70 wins, 18 losses and 2 draws with a Suburban League Championship in 1953 and a sectional crown in 1957. His varsity lacrosse teams have gone unbeaten during the past three years.

Tickets for the banquet may be purchased from Art Busby by calling 255-5109. Tickets cost $6 for adults and $4 for children.

Big turnout seen for Evans tourney

With an anticipated turnout of over 250 players, the second annual Chick Evans Teen-Age Golf Tournament will take place Aug. 4-8.

The Mount Prospect park district country club will host the event with three age groups competing against one another. Six trophies will be awarded in each group of 13-14, 15-16, an 17-19 years.

This tournament gives young golfers the opportunity to develop good golfing habits and skills and promote good sportsmanship.

The winner and runner-up in the 17-19 group will qualify to play in the Chick Evans Amateur Championship Tournament.

Entry forms for the event may be obtained by writing to the Chick Evans Amateur Golf Assn., P.O. Box 11444, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Arlington gives varsity letters

Thirty-three Arlington students received sports awards for their participation in the men's athletic program this spring.

Receiving varsity awards in baseball were Dar Townsend, James Busby, Jerry DeSimone, Joseph Losos, Brett Frase, James Purcell, Russell Schreiner, Matt Splitt, Don Stebbins, James Vogts, John Vukovich, Mike Mayerck, and John Mertins.

Track award winners include Craig Bernhardy, Jim Graham, Greg Hansen, Glen Johnson, Robert Walsworth, Phil Dinielli, Steve Hadley, Jeff Haslam, Scott Letzel, and managers Pet Carter, Joe Kempisty, and Mark Moehling.

Award winners from the tennis team were Gary Howes, Doug Scott, Luke Weeg, John Yeazel, Pete Burkhardt, John Wallner, Todd Van Gorp and Paul Wei.

Grid signup in Mount Prospect

The Mount Prospect Midget Football Association will hold registration for the 1975 season on Saturday, June 7, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the community center at Mount Prospect Country Club.

All grade school boys between the ages of eight and 14 by Dec. 1, 1975, who live in the village or park district of Mount Prospect are eligible to register. All new applicants must be accompanied by a parent and must present proof of age. Those who participated last fall may register in person or by mail.

Registration fee is $18 per family member plus $10 for each additional member. Questions may be directed to commissioner Tom Toepper at 437-4886.

Science agrees gray skies bring on the blues

by MONICA PERIN

You say the gloomy, rainy weather we've been having is getting you down?

Depending on how you look at it, your problem could actually be caused by weather factors — a field of study known as "meteor-psychiatry" — or your problem could be the weatherman.

Have you ever heard a weatherman speak in positive or joyful terms of any weather other than clear skies, sunshine and balmy temperatures? Could it be that we are all conditioned to crave this one set of weather conditions and when faced with anything else, we make ourselves miserable cursing that it's too hot, too cold, too wet, too dry, etc?

"I CAN THINK of few more insidious disservices to mankind in these times than the preaching of hatred for the miraculous sources of all earthly life," writes a simple soul to the editor of a national magazine. "We are reminded two or three times a day that rain, wind, fog, sleet, snow, cold, and every other meteorological phenomenon except smoky blah weather are things to hate."

And the writer points approvingly to the very practical philosophy of Henry David Thoreau: "The gentle rain which waters my beans and keeps me in the house today is not drear and melancholy but good for me, too." Such long, rainy afternoons and evenings, Thoreau said, gave his thoughts a chance to flower.

But if you are a very empirical moderne, you may pooh-pooh these gems of wisdom and demand the facts. So here they are:

A DROP IN the barometric pressure, which usually precedes a storm, has been observed to cause restlessness, depression, apathy, and irrational behavior in people. According to Dr. Clarence Mills, a psychiatrist at the University of Cincinnati, a barometric drop causes swollen tissues and increased pressure in the brain, which may explain some of these symptoms.

Another scientist reported in 1972 that his study of English school children indicated improved task performance with high barometric pressure; low temperature, humidity, and wind velocity; and sunshine.

Other studies have reinforced the findings of better mental attitudes and working ability with moderate temperatures. These and other meteor-psychiatric studies have been done on both normal persons and the mentally disturbed, with the latter often becoming even more agitated or depressed under certain weather conditions.

BESIDES MOOD changes, such conditions — particularly low barometric pressure — have been associated scientifically with increased suicides and crimes.

One theory is that atmospheric electricity — the positive and negative ions in our environment — get out of balance when a storm is approaching and pressure is falling. There is a surplus of positive atoms then which causes depression.

Another weather troublemaker is the "ill wind that blows no good." Actually, there is such a thing. It is known as the "fohn," or in Israel, the "sharav." it is a hot, dry wind which, according to some Israeli doctors, induces excessive production of serotonin, a brain chemical essential to normal functioning but which in excess may cause depression.

SEROTONIN ALSO helps regulate sleep, which may explain the association of changed sleep patterns with weather-induced psychological disturbances.

As if all this doesn't present enough of a problem, the atmospheric conditions created by man himself also affect our psyche. Excessive carbon monoxide pollution such as in urban traffic can cause impaired human performance, irritability, disturbed sleep and other abnormalities, according to a research team at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. The scientists also noted increased incidence of violence when sulphur dioxide, oxidents and suspended dust are at high levels.

By studying the effects of various weather conditions on human behavior, scientists hope to be able to predict — and thus prevent, or at least prepare for — the resulting emergencies in hospitals, psychiatric institutions and police stations.

BUT THOSE OF us who are blessed with relatively stable mental health might seek to control our weather-induced aberrations by shutting out the weatherman's prattle and adopting a positive attitude toward all kinds of weather.

I think I'll take advantage of this lovely thunderstorm and clean out some closets!

Tooth implants in baboons one of research projects

(Last of three articles on dental care, dental bills and dental research.)

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Dr. Milton Hodash of Brown University sometimes is seen speeding on the streets of Providence, R.I., with a baboon or two snoozing in his car.

These are not your usual baboons. Hodash isn't your usual dentist.

Once when a policeman flagged him for speeding, Hodash explained. Any minute and the anesthesia would wear off and the baboons might romp all over the interior of the car — disrupting driver and maybe causing an accident.

Hodash was not given a ticket and continued his race to the animal center with baboons still in dreamland.

FOR MORE THAN a decade Hodash has been experimenting with implants to take the place of human teeth. He has been using baboons in the research. Some have had implants for more than 10 years with no ill effects. He always transports them anesthetized from the animal quarters to his laboratory.

He has implanted teeth made of a plastic material in some humans. In an interview he said he is encouraged. Not far down the road, implants may be in the dentist's bag of techniques, to hear him tell it.

Hodash is one of an army of dental researchers aiming for better ways of filling gaps in the nation's dental health picture.

At the National Institute of Dental Research in Bethesda, Md., hundreds of research grants are under supervision.

They range from programs in better pain control — including research in acupuncture. The pain control place for a dentist using acupunture is the hand's fleshy part between the thumb and index finger.

IT TAKES A long time for research results to becme neighborhood dentistry. For example, audio analgesia is really old hat, but not many who visit dentists ever have had pain killed or masked by audio.

This is accomplished by clamping a headset on the patient and turning sound up to where it masks dental noise and helps to reduce pain sensations.

Pilot studies funded by Uncle Sam are going on in Rochester, N.Y., and other communities — testing the effectiveness of plastic sealants coated on teeth. Will this stop cavities? Time will tell.

A review of recent developments on the dental front:

Old, discolored crowns now can be remodeled in the patient's mouth in about a half-hour dental appointment. Dr. J. Daniel Cox of Westfield, N.Y., says the resins and a powder mix are applied directly to the surface of gold or acrylic crowns to produce an attractive looking tooth.

IF YOUR CHILD has a tooth knocked out, get him to the dentist as soon as possible for the best chance of successful reimplantation of the tooth. There's a strong correlation between the length of time the tooth is out of the bone socket and subsequent root resorption. The tooth should be placed back into the socket immediately — even by lay personnel. If tooth replacement this way is not practical it should be placed in a container of water or patient's saliva until professional help can be obtained.

Children who chewed two fluoride tablets each school day over a five-year period experienced 30 per cent less new tooth decay when compared to children in the same school who did not use the tablets, a National Institute of Dental Research scientist reported at the annual meeting of the American Association for Dental Research. Dr. William S. Driscoll of Bethesda, Md., said the interim findings are of a study being conducted in Wayne County, N.C., where drinking water contains insignificant levels of natural fluoride.

A MEDICAL College of Georgia researcher has found an association between smoking, abnormal coloration in the soft part of the roof of the mouth and lung cancer. Dr. Hubert W. Merchant of Augusta said that he first noticed unusual pigmentation or coloring in a patient known to be a heavy smoker with a history of lung disease. It appears, he concluded, "that the occurrence of smoking, abnormal pigmentation and lung disorders is not a coincidence and more studies need to be done to see if we

Making it easier to clean house

by KAY MARSH

Now that summer is almost here, some of us procrastinators need a bit of inspiration to get on with that better-late-than-never spring cleaning. Here, then, are a few household hints, old and new, that just might help you to get started.

1. For a handy knee-saver to use when scrubbing floors, pulling weeds or whatever, fill an old and leaky hot water bottle with rags.

2. To whiten a discolored bread board, rub it with a lemon rind turned inside out. Then wash the wood in warm water.

3. To clean discolored glass cookware, simply spray it with oven cleaner. Wait a few minutes, then you can sponge it off with ease. Be sure you wash the piece thoroughly before you use it again.

4. When you clean out your "catch-all" kitchen drawer, stick loose tacks, small nails and other sharp objects into a large cork.

5. A large cork also comes in handy when you have to remove a broken light bulb from its socket. Just press the cork into the base of the bulb, and you'll be able to unscrew it safely and easily.

6. Coat your dustpan with a self-polishing wax to keep dirt from sticking.

7. Another good work preventive: cut a sponge to fit the soap receptacle in bathroom or kitchen. The sponge will absorb drippings and keep them from caking. What's more, the sponge can be used for quick daily clean-ups.

8. WITH BUDGET-WATCHING so much the order of the day, think twice before you buy more expensive special-purpose cleaners to add to your collection. Remember, you can work wonders with a simple tried-and-true product, such as baking soda. And do buy an extra box to keep in your refrigerator — it banishes odors like magic.

9. Soda will also take the odor of mildew out of a musty closet, if you scrub the interior with one cup of baking soda per pail of hot water. (Of course, you hang the clothes out to air before you start to scrub.)

10. Wrap scented candle remnants in tissue paper and use as no-cost sachets for linens and lingerie.

11. To clean spotty wallpaper, mix up a paste of cornstarch and water. Dab it on and brush off after it's dried.

12. A new broom may sweep clean, but it will last longer if you soak the bristles in hot salt water before using for the first time.

13. Use an empty soft-drink carton as a caddy to carry cleaning supplies from room to room and/or floor to floor.

14. To soften a stiff chamois cloth, rinse it in two quarts of water mixed with a tablespoon of olive oil.

15. The pungent aroma of a bay leaf will help keep bugs out of a sack or canister of flour.

16. If a small rug tends to slip underfoot, sew a fruit jar rubber on each corner to help anchor the rug and prevent nasty spills.

17. IF CHIGGERS bother you when you clean outside or garden, press a piece of adhesive tape tightly over a chigger welt. When you pull it away the chigger comes with it.

18. If you're wrapping up something for storage or mailing, dampen the string before using it to tie. The string will shrink itself tighter as it dries.

19. Use a toothbrush and bleach to clean out the crevices between bathroom tiles.

20. Use plastic coffee or nut can covers as drip-catching coasters on the shelf where you keep syrup and cooking oils.

21. Keep spice boxes in alphabetical order. And alphabetize other items on kitchen shelves wherever it's practicable.

22. After you oil your sewing machine, stitch through a blotter a couple of times to absorb the surplus.

23. Hang an ordinary paper bag on the side of your sewing machine and toss in scraps of material and thread. Lay a magnet on the machine to hold pins.

24. If you decide to celebrate with a party, once you get everything shipshape, substitute a colored bulb for the regular bulb in your front porch light. Tell you guests about it in advance, so they can find your house with ease.

Women and children first

Family expenses: who's to pay?

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I'm married and have several children. My husband is causing me a great deal of trouble. Without telling me he took all our savings and everything we had to go into business. The business failed a few years later and he filed personal bankruptcy. Soon after I was hounded by calls, people at the door, and mail. Our lawyer said I was being forced into filing because I, too, was responsible being that I lived with my husband. He lied, wrote bad checks and everything else.

MY LIFE HAS been a nightmare. I hold a full-time job that doesn't pay much. I pay all the children's needs, doctor bills, etc. I recently paid a doctor's bill and was summoned to court too. I have been called at my job, sent final notices where I am humiliated enough to pay his bills because I'm afraid the creditors will come after me.

My question is, "Am I responsible and if so why when I didn't write the checks or purchase the articles or receive service (doctor, etc.)? Is there any way I can protect myself? Will I lose what I have in the bank in my own name if he defaults on a loan from that bank?" Thank you. — Anonymous.

Dear Anonymous,

There are certain requests in your letter that I cannot comply with because of legal ethics and the limitations of a column dispensing "legal information" only. (I also had to condense your letter to fit the alloted space.) As I see it, you are right in stating that most of your troubles are legal ones and the information I may give you through this column while helpful, will not, I am afraid, solve your many problems.

I SUGGEST YOU obtain a lawyer. If you cannot afford one, you might try the Women's Legal Aid Clinic (953-6808, Wednesday evenings between 7 and 9) and find out if you are eligible for free legal service.

From what I've been able to deduce from your letter, it appears that your husband is overly ambitious and not cautious enough rather than deliberately cruel or unkind. Since he will not join you in therapy, perhaps he might be willing to seek some help from a financial adviser which, quite obviously, he needs at this time.

In that way, he may be able to straighten out his business and legal affairs and relieve you of the burdens that are being thrust upon you.

• It is important that you do this immediately because Illinois law says you are responsible for certain items that fall under "Family Expenses."

What is a family expense depends upon the circumstances in each case. It may include musical instruments, books, articles of use for the home (even adornments), clothing through owned by individual family members, and as in your situation, hospital and medical expenses.

It also includes rent even if your husband alone signed the lease.

The general test to establish "family expense" is whether the expenditure was incurred for the family, because of it, and further, whether it is to be used by the family. The test will differ depending upon the family's financial condition and standard of living. In some instances even a fur coat might fall into this category.

• Your question "Why am I responsible?" can best be answered by going back to the principle that marriage is a contract with rights plus obligations.

In everyday living, the swiftness of business transactions brings about a need for credit to replace cash so there are checks, loans, credit cards, mortgages, time payments, etc.

In a sales contract, enter the creditor. He has given a refrigerator, stove or whatever the family may use and is entitled to be paid for his goods. The law tries to balance the rights of all persons involved. It would not, for example, be fair for the creditor to lose his goods while someone else is using them without paying for them. The creditor could not nemain in business if that situation weie allowed to exist.

• If you signed the bank loan, the bank could proceed against your account. Your bank account may also be subject to attachment if a creditor files a suit against you.

I hope you will seek help immediately so that you may avoid further debts that your husband may incur.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

She bakes her Yorkshire pudding at 350 degrees

Dear Dorothy: I don't want to get into a cooking debate with your friend Nora Towey, but I don't think her 450-degree heat for Yorkshire pudding has to be the last word. I do mine at 350 and friends have raved about it for years. Mine is an old English recipe.

I beat four eggs, add a pint of milk, a scant cup of flour and a sprinkling of salt. Usually, I make it ahead and put it in the refrigerator. All it takes is another quick beating just before using it.

About half an hour before the rib roast is done, I pour off some of the fat into a 13x9 baking pan. The fat should be about one-half inch high and boiling hot when the mixture is poured into it. It takes about 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven to get puffy and brown and I cut it into squares and serve around the roast. — Mrs. Gloria Quigley

Nora holds to the hot-popover theory and insists 350 for Yorkshire pudding is "impossible." She's a great cook and yet I have to make the point that anything is possible in cooking. I've had both the 450-and 350-degree puddings. Both have hit the spot. I'm not about to experiment more. For me, this delicacy is out of bounds. Calories!

Dear Dorothy: Is there a simple way to mend rubber gloves? — Mrs. Wayne Gillespie

Some use regular tire patch, say the round patches stick better. Others use plastic which comes in a tube. Still others report that moleskin works fine over such worn areas.

Dear Dorothy: Occasionally I have to let out my husband's trousers at the waist. I've always found it a difficult task until a friend suggested I baste the new seam before I ripped the old seam. What a simple solution! — Ada Heim can use this to predict lung disorders."

Is it possible to immunize adults against periodontal gum disease, the major cause of tooth loss in adults? Dr. Russell J. Nisengard of the State University of New York at Buffalo School of Dentistry thinks it may be possible. Immunoglobulins found in secretions of diseased gums can reduce the disease-producing bacteria or interact with them to cause tissue damage characteristic of gum disease he has found. He may be on an important trail.

A NEW TRANSPLANT technique, grafting tissue directly to the bond instead of to the remaining soft tissue may offer effective treatment for patients sufferi g from gum recession, a University of Pennsylvania Dental researcher reports. Under traditional methods, patients with this type of periodontal or gum disease are treated by transplanting gingiva, or gum tissue, from the palate to a surgically prepared area where tissue has receded or was lost.

Dr. Bruck Dordick said his research indicates that better results may be obtained by transplanting soft tissue directly onto the bone. His innovative approach has the advantages of less chair time and a lower incidence of postoperative swelling than the currently used technique.

A Paddock review

'Lion in Winter' uneven but worth seeing

by PAT ADAM

One should anticipate seeing "The Lion in Winter," Village Theatre's current offering at Hersey High School. A slice of history, it's serious drama well laced with humor.

King Henry II of England has reached his fifties (hence the "winter" of the title), he won't live forever and he wants to name one of his three sons as heir to the throne before he dies. His queen, Eleanor of Aquitaine, no longer shares his throne or his bed but rather is his prisoner except on such occasions as this, the Christmas holiday. She desires her favorite, Richard the Lionhearted, to be Henry's successor. Henry's choice is their youngest, John (the one who later signed the Magna Carta). Middle son Geoffrey rates no consideration by either.

THE SONS HAVE their own ideas and ambitions. Richard thinks he deserves the throne. John believes Henry will seat him on it. Geoffrey realizes he'll never be king, but he'll settle for being the power behind the throne.

The conflict is further exacerbated by Henry's desire for young Alais, sister of the French King Philip, who's promised to Richard.

Such intrigue has basis in history though the royal personalities have been fleshed out by playwright James Goldman. His language is 20th not 12th century, but that doesn't detract for it makes the dialog, especially the humor, more understandable to a contemporary audience.

UNFORTUNATELY Village Theatre is unable to decide whether to play "The Lion in Winter" as serious drama witha light touch or something approaching farce. It's hard to pinpoint the trouble . . . a lack of appreciation for the play or inexperience on the part of some actors.

Betty deGroh handles her role as Eleanor superbly. She is consistent, milking her lines, which are numerous, for every bit of drama and humor. She strides about as if she truly is queen, a strong-willed Eleanor, somewhat softened by her years and her confinement.

But Bill Allenfort is disappointing as King Henry II, the lion of the title. He simply isn't kingly enough — either in manner or speech. His portrayal lacks majesty — after all, this is Henry II who at the height of his power ruled not only England but nearly all western France as well. This is the king for whom Thomas Becket was first advocate, then adversary.

JON ANTHONY as Richard gives a consistent performance. His Richard is intense, lacking in humor, single-minded in pursuit of his father's throne, even willing to do battle for it.

Young Tom Anderson, a freshman at Arlington High School, demonstrates an innate comedic talent and considerable stage presence in his portrayal of John. Though his gesturing often betrays his youth, he is genuinely funny. But his performance sometimes borders on farce, which this play is not. However, this probably is due mostly to inexperience. Tom should develop into an excellent actor.

John Schile Jr. does a fairly good job as Geoffrey, although he could appear a bit more devious and malicious. What power Geoffrey will ever exert must be achieved through manipulation of others, not by himself directly. Schile should give stronger hint of that.

HELMUTH LECHNER as King Philip takes the serious approach projecting the French ruler as no longer a callow youth but a now confident monarch. Margaret deGroh's Alais wavers between being adoring of Henry and self-assertive. Also still a high school student, she gives promise of repeating her mother's stage success.

Sets for "The Lion in Winter" hint at the massiveness of a medieval castle without actually portraying it, again demonstrating VT's talent in this area.

Despite shortcomings in this production, it is worth seeing for the play itself if you never have and the strong performances of Betty deGroh, Jon Anthony and Tom Anderson. Tickets, 259-3200. Performances Friday and Saturday.
